DA's office slaps lawsuit on Simic Galleries

By DAVID LELAND

THE MONTEREY County District Attorney's Office on Wednesday accused Carmel gallery owner Mario Simic of intentionally misleading the public concerning paintings crafted by French painter Paul Valere.

"This (lawsuit) may have been appropriate in March of 1988. I think Morgan Taylor is very late and also approaching the wrong people."

— Ed King

— Simic Galleries

Specifically, the lawsuit, filed in Monterey County Superior Court Nov. 15, claims that Simic "attributed educational and professional accomplishments...when such biographical information was not true in fact."

Moreover, the lawsuit alleges that the Simic Galleries "represented...the works of artists whose works they offered for sale in their galleries were or would become beneficial investments, when this was not true in fact."

Valere, whose real name is Oscar Bouville, also paints under the pseudonym Jean Ribout.

His works, which principally show landscapes of the French countryside, have been under investigation since the FBI received tips of fraud during an unrelated investigation in March of 1988.

"Simic knew, or should have known, that the information he was passing onto the public was not true," said Morgan Taylor, deputy district attorney. "There are clear indications that Mario Simic should have...notified the public."

He added that the FBI has handed the "bulk" of its evidence over to the DA's office, which is the first government agency to file charges against Simic.

For example, Taylor cited a biographical brochure on Valere distributed at Simic Galleries in which Valere is said to have received honors from Medaille d'Or du Salon d'Automne, the Grand Prix de Peintres de la Lorie and is affiliated with Membre de Salon des Artistes Francais.

"Basically they (FBI) found out that none of these groups had ever heard of him (Valere)," Taylor said.

Representatives of Simic Galleries, however, dismissed the lawsuit as inaccurate and behind the times.

"This (lawsuit) may have been appropriate in March of 1988," said Ed King, vice president of Simic Galleries. "I think Morgan Taylor is very late and also approaching the wrong people."

The real culprit, according to King, is Robert Fruchter, who formerly served as Valere's agent.

It was Fruchter who changed biographical facts, without the knowledge of Valere, King said.

When Simic Galleries found out about the misinformation, it changed the biography and stopped payment on more than $200,000 owed to Fruchter.

Fruchter sued in Monterey County Superior Court; Simic Galleries has countered for "millions," said King, and the matter is still unresolved.

SINCE FINDING out that the paintings had been misrepresented, Simic Galleries has notified those who purchased paintings by Valere and Ribout, King said. They have also removed any inaccuracies from the brochure.

"We've had pretty good response and taken care of all our clients' concerns," said King, adding that the gallery had sold more than 500 such works during the past seven years.

On "a few occasions" clients asked for their money back and were accommodated, King said.

Taylor and King are also at odds when it comes to the paintings' value.

"The paintings are worth little (in) value," said Taylor of the art which sells for prices ranging from $4,000 to $24,000.

Taylor added that one art appraiser hired by the FBI to assess the value of the works said that he would pay $100 for one piece

SLIGHTLY MORE than a year ago, Oscar Bouville, also known as Paul Valere and Jean Ribout, appeared with his wife at Simic

Galleries to dispel rumours that his paintings were the work of others than himself. (Chuck Scardina photo.)

that originally sold for thousands of dollars "only because he liked the frame."

King vehemently disagreed.

"I believe that the art is worth what we are selling it for and the sales prove that," he said.

In addition to maintaining a gallery at Sixth Avenue and San Carlos Street in Carmel, Simic Galleries has locations in La Jolla and Beverly Hills.

This weekend, Valere is scheduled to appear at a showing of his work at the La Jolla location.

Taylor said his office is keeping a watchful eye on galleries in Carmel — especially those that sell reproductions and have not posted a notice representing that fact to the public.

"This lawsuit may make a few people clean up their acts," said Taylor, adding that behind car dealers, art galleries top the list of consumer complaints coming into his office.

Several weeks ago, the DA's office worked out a deal with Hansen Galleries in which the gallery agreed to reimburse customers for works which may have been fake or misrepresented.

The gallery, however, was never accused of

"Simic knew, or should have known, that the information he was passing onto the public was not true."

— Morgan Taylor
— DA's office

intentionally selling false works, and did not admit so in reimbursing customers.

The DA's office is seeking a permanent injunction against Simic Galleries against selling Valere or Ribout's paintings because their value is in question.

The complaint also asks for at least $200,000 in civil damages for false advertising and unfair business practices.

After one-week delay, Measure B narrowly approved by 11 votes

By DAVID LELAND

IT MAY have taken an extra week to get the final results, but county supervisors didn't mind waiting for the news that Measure B had passed muster by a scant 11 votes.

The adoption marks a reversal of initial results of the Nov. 7 election, which showed the measure, which will impose a one-half cent sales tax countywide beginning April 1, losing by seven votes.

"Everyone in the county is very pleased," said 5th District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman. "Now we'll have a chance to provide some of those services that have been demanded by our constituents for years."

The tax will raise $355 million to finance 24 projects throughout the county. Locally Carmel Valley Road will be widened, to the tune of $25.6 million, from the mouth of the valley to Robinson Canyon Road, the libraries in Carmel, Monterey, Pacific Grove and Salinas ($8.9 million), and Carmel Valley will be subsidized by receiving $1.6 million.

Countywide, money will be spent on the Highway 101/Prunedale bypass ($123.5 million), a new county hospital ($90 million), and mass transit ($20 million), to name a few.

The official count now stands at 21,225 voters for Measure B and 21,214 votes against.

During the past week 545 provisional and absentee ballots were tallied by the county Elections Department.

Of those votes, 262 people voted for the measure and 244 voted against. Some of the provisional ballots could not be counted because voter registration could not be verified.

Were supervisors somewhat apprehensive when waiting for the additional votes to be counted Monday afternoon? A little, maybe.

Out of touch?

Dear Editor:

When I read your editorial of Nov. 2 endorsing Dale Hekhuis and Billy DeBerry, I was delighted at your endorsement of Dale Hekhuis. However, I was struck by how out of touch your paper, in endorsing Mr. DeBerry, is with your constituents, the citizens of the environs of Carmel.

It was obvious that the writer of the editorial had trouble coming up with reasons to justify the endorsement of Mr. DeBerry. It is hard not to compare your editorial on the water board candidates with the thoughtful, articulate endorsement editorial run by the Herald.

Indeed, now that the election results are in, we see that Carmel residents joined the rest of the peninsula voters in overwhelmingly rejecting the controversial policies and philosophy espoused by Mr. DeBerry and the Lombardo majority.

Hopefully, in the future, the Pine Cone will take an editorial position which is more responsible and more responsive to the thinking of Carmel's citizens.

Appreciates coverage

Dear Editor:

The Carmel Pine Cone edition of Nov. 2, contained a very nice article my Margye Neswitz and photographs by Chuck Scardina of the fourth annual Gateway Center awards presentation at Mission Ranch Barn.

On behalf of the Board of Trustees of Gateway Center, we wish to thank you for you continued coverage of this event and the fine articles by Margye Neswitz.

It is very important for Gateway Center to bring its program to the attention of our Monterey Peninsula community and because of the nature of our program, sometimes difficult to do.

For that reason, we truly appreciate your coverage of our annual event.

Saddened by resignation

Dear Editor:

We read with much sorrow in the Nov. 2 Pine Cone about the resignation of Richard Tyler as Carmel community and cultural director.

Mr. Tyler has been a very effective cultural director and has been responsible for making numerous improvements in the quality and kinds of cultural events during his tenure at Sunset Center.

We share the concerns expressed by City Councilman Ken White about the direction in which the city may be going towards combining of cultural and recreation commissions. We hope that Mr. Schmitz and Mr. D'Ambrosio will not do anything to diminish the worldwide reputation of Carmel as a prominent center for the performing arts.

If we remember correctly, this is not the first time that Carmel has squeezed someone out of the city's employment shortly before he could retire with full retirement benefits. Certainly, the city could show more compassion to its longtime employees.

Finally, we want to wish Mr. Tyler success and happiness in his retirement and/or new career. He has earned the admiration and respect of the community.

Blow it up!

Dear Editor:

Thank you for enlarging the crossword puzzle in your Nov. 2nd issue! I was preparing to write a request that you do so, so I hope this wasn't just a one-shot deal but you will continue the practice.

For many of us the crossword is a high point in our week but our elderly eyesight reduces the pleasure when it is printed so small. Please...blow it up for us each week! We'll be grateful.

Overcontrol

Dear Editor:

It has come to our attention that the City of Carmel is sponsoring and has authorized a survey of historical buildings in Carmel, known as "The Carmel Architectural and Historical Survey."

Quote: "emphasis has been placed on our need for assistance in actually recording (photographing) the more than 3,200 buildings (homes) within the city limits."

Question: Why is it necessary to take a picture of every house along with a detailed description; is every building historical?

Quote: "In addition to researching individual buildings, we will need researchers to cull information from a variety of public and private institutions, such as library, city and county offices, title companies, and historical archives."

Question: Why is all this information being compiled, and will it be used for any purpose other than historical? and is the city paying for any part of this survey? and who will be paying for liability insurance on these volunteers?

We find there have been some trends toward overcontrol in Carmel in the past several years. This bothers us, does it bother you?

Quiet heroes

Dear Editor:

During a disaster there are a great number of people and organizations who go about their business quietly and professionally, without notoriety or recognition.

One such organization is the Alliance on Aging Food Bank of Monterey County. Since the earthquake on Oct. 17, the Food Bank has been operation seven days a week, 10 hours a day, to provide food for both the Pajaro Red Cross Shelter and the Emergency Food Bank.

The Alliance on Aging Food Bank began the immediate transportation of many generous donations of food from the agricultural and business community of Monterey County. Food Bank warehouses were available for the collection and storage of food. Then the Food Bank trucks began transporting and distributing the food.

Economic quake

THE OCTOBER earthquake created havoc and terrible tragedy to our neighbors to the north. Countless people lost their homes and their possessions.

Our neighbors' loss has, indeed, been uppermost in the minds of Carmel's business owners and residents as we have banded together to volunteer our services, goods, and dollars to our unfortunate friends.

Carmel was spared serious property damage by the earthquake. (I'm also told that Carmel did not suffer any serious damage in the 1906 San Francisco earthquake.) Carmel, has, however, suffered severe economic losses...not from the earthquake, but from the media. Comments went out on national television such as "We have not yet heard from Monterey or Carmel. We do not know if they were destroyed or if their phones are just out."

Carmel has been suffering the effects of the media blitz which has done little to relay the fact that Carmel suffered no damage and no injuries.

In Carmel, 70 to 80 percent of our economy is dependent on tourism. Since Oct. 17, the 53 members of the Carmel Innkeepers Association, and the owners and operators of the town's 50 restaurants and 350 shops, reported a drastic drop in tourism, and a constant flood of phone calls cancelling plans for visits, usually beginning with "Oh, you're still there."

The drop in tourism is from visitors who have relied on news reports of the devastation assuming, incorrectly, that areas miles away from the epicenter were affected.

The Carmel business community provides approximately two thirds of Carmel's city income through hostelry and sales taxes. At their November meeting, the Carmel City Council approved a cutback in city expenditures because of an estimated initial drop in revenues of between $400,000 and $515,000 from sales and hostelry taxes and a future negative impact on business license revenues of $41,339. Another review of Carmel's business activities will be conducted by the city council again in December.

In an attempt to bring back our visitors to Carmel, the Carmel Innkeepers Association has hired a publicist to get out the word throughout the state of California and across the country that Carmel's quaint and stylish shops are up and running, there is a choice of rooms at our inns, our restaurants are uncrowded, and our beach is clean, beautiful and ready to be experienced by autumn visitors.

The Carmel Business Association has been designing an ad campaign which will be launched this month to invite our local residents and neighboring communities to Carmel to shop for Christmas.

At the request of the Carmel Business Association, the Carmel City Council has extended one-hour parking zones to two hours during the Christmas shopping season.

The Carmel Business Association and the Carmel Residents Association is planning a fun-filled Christmas weekend in Carmel beginning with our traditional tree lighting ceremony the evening of Dec. 15, with festivities continuing on throughout that weekend. There will be strolling carolers, shopkeepers in Dickens costumes, beautifully decorated shops, colorful Christmas lights, and refreshments for our Christmas guests.

The decline in business activity is expected to be temporary. Just how temporary, we don't know at this point. We are seeing more visitors again on weekends. But even temporary sales declines can be devastating to our business owners and to the community.

The earthquake and its economic aftermath have illuminated our business community's need for strong local support. The residents and the businesses need one another in order to maintain the high standard of living we enjoy in Carmel.

The Carmel Business Association encourages our residents and our neighbors to shop in Carmel. Take this holiday time to reacquaint yourselves with our lovely village and its varied shops and delightful restaurants.

We are proud of our charming community. Our businesses and residents immediately jumped into action to help our less fortunate neighbors. Let's just hope we can be just as compassionate to our own hometown's serious economic needs.

SHOP AND DINE IN CARMEL.

(Editor's Note: Barbara Simmons is a Realtor and president of the Carmel Business Association.)

Pebble Beach Co., American Farms, and numerous volunteers, the distribution of food continued. Assistance was also given to Santa Cruz and Hollister.

The Alliance on Aging Food Bank is the only major non-profit organization, other than the Red Cross, to provide ongoing assistance to disaster victims, many in our own county. The Food Bank provided free surplus food and also purchased other food items to be transported.

The Food Bank responded swiftly and wholeheartedly and still continues to store and distribute the many tons of food being shipped into this area to support the emergency relief effort. This dedication and spirit deserves our thanks and support.

Water agencies join forces to save riverbanks

By NANCY HILLS

BULLDOZERS, STEELHEAD trout, major water wells and the Carmel River environment may seem like an odd combination, but it's one that could work.

The Monterey Peninsula Water Management District and California-American Water Co. have joined forces to protect one of the company's redrilled wells and prevent further erosion of river embankments, explained district assistant hydrologist Graham Matthews.

"The project includes about 2,000 linear feet near Scarlett Road and incorporates six parcels (properties along the river) — two private properties, one owned by Carmel Unified School District and a piece of Carmel Valley Ranch," Matthews said.

Cal-Am, he said, had lost two wells due to erosion. One well used to be up on the river bank, but erosion put it in the river bed. That eliminated its year-round production.

Cal-Am is footing most of the approximately $170,000 bill for the project, Matthews said.

"During the last few storms, we lost about 20 to 30 feet of bank," said Cal-Am operations manager Gerry Haas. "The Scarlett well is very important. It has good water quality and does not have to be treated or filtered. It is also on a gradient so the water does not have to be boosted to our facilities. It is probably the best location for a well."

Haas said that putting the well back into production would not add more water to the system, but has allowed the company to turn off the wells in upper Carmel Valley.

"It's not a new water supply," he added. What is does allow, Haas said, is for Cal-

Am to turn off the wells in upper Carmel Valley, a critical area for the river ecology, particularly the steelhead trout. Many of the steelhead that have survived the drought are in the pools that still exist in the upper valley. Pumping the wells in that area can drain those pools.

Matthews explained that the erosion control project is the second major erosion project the district has planned and executed.

The district has conducted smaller erosion control projects and planted willows in areas subject to erosion. It has also installed thousands of feet of drip irrigation to water the natural vegetation along the dry river where major wells have drained the aquifer below the tree roots.

The first large erosion control project was along 4,000 linear feet near Schulte Bridge where storms had done major damage and property owners had lost large chunks of land.

Matthews explained that to help control the water flow, bulldozers from Terry Bishop Grading company are rearranging the river bed to its "optimum shape," narrower, which is its more natural configuration. The lighter flows of recent years, the product of taking water from the natural system to supply human demands, have created a more meandering and wider river.

Once the reconfiguration is completed, the banks will be planted with vegetation, willows and cottonwoods, to anchor the soil as naturally as possible.

However, Matthews said, they will be using some rip-rap — loose boulders — to stabilize the banks.

The district has planned a low-flow channel in the streambed for the steelhead fish and will line the river bed with cobbles sorted from the dirt and silt now being shifted around.

BULLDOZERS RESHAPE the Carmel River channel back to its more natural shape as part of an erosion control project for the

Over the years, the eroded materials combined with recent low flows in the river have allowed the smaller soil particles to clog the river bed, offering poor habitat for the steelhead. The lighter materials make "unstable surfaces."

"The fish build nests when they spawn in the cobbles," Matthews said.

The project was originally scheduled to start last year, but the district was informed that it had to get a Federal 404 permit for most projects, large and small, in the river bed.

"It took 13 months to get a 404 permit," Matthews said. "Originally, we were going to build the project in 1988. It was a somewhat frustrating process."

Matthews said they needed to coordinate and receive permits from the Army Corps of Engineers (404 permit), California Department of Fish & Game and a Monterey County grading permit.

"It took a lot of time and effort to get those through," he said.

Matthews said he expects the work to be completed in about a month.

Lombardo quietly ends tenure as water board chairman

By NANCY HILLS

A CALM Nick Lombardo said his piece Monday night at his last meeting as chairman of the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District board.

Lombardo, whose two-year term as chairman was dogged by controversy and charges of conflicts of interest, told the audience that in the past four years as a water district director he had "not shirked any segment" of the responsibilities of the district, "and that includes the environmental concerns."

Lombardo decided against running for another term in the recent election. Incum-

'It is sad to read and listen to so many who say that development and economic benefit are strictly opportunities for the rich and greedy. This is appalling.'

— Nick Lombardo

bent Billy DeBerry, who was backed by Lombardo, was defeated by a more than 2-1 margin by two environmental candidates.

"In reviewing the years of work by the district's staff and governmental agencies, and including the bulk of the money spent for the process of trying to resolve our water storage problem, there is proof that environmental issues and their mitigation have been and are top priority," he said.

"I am, however, very concerned at the overall lack of interest or concern regarding economic opportunity and benefit," he added.

The recent campaign, Lombardo said, was "ripe with innuendo and included phrases implying that certain candidates were not concerned about these great environmental responsibilities, and further, that voting for anyone but themselves would turn the Monterey Peninsula into a nightmare of development. Does anyone really believe that?" he asked.

One of the highest priorities for the district is to add water storage capacity to allow the buildout planned for by the cities and Monterey County, he said.

"It is sad to read and listen to so many who say that development and economic benefit are strictly opportunities for the rich and greedy. This is appalling, particularly when mouthed by people who themselves have enjoyed this opportunity and are living from the fruits of capitalistic endeavor.

"A building moratorium and anything less than 100 percent effort to build a dam or reservoir in effect builds a wall around the Monterey Peninsula. This is counterproductive, regressive and further deteriorates opportunity," he added.

"The earthquake recently taught some about the importance and value of the visitor-tourist industry. How quickly the precious tax dollars can stop. I noticed that City of Monterey is spending $40,000 to promote some of the hotel/motel lost room tax money," he said about the possible limitation of water meter hookups. "Moratorium of new building activity in effect would be similar to a devastating earthquake to the construction industry, and more importantly, the people whose very existence depends upon this on-going development."

He asked the new board to not "divert" the water district staff from the number one goal of getting a dam and said that other projects, such as the allocation environmental impact report could "seriously injure the timetable and prospects of the dam project."

Referring to a campaign in which DeBerry was called Lombardo's man, Lombardo said, "If guilt by association is correct, I'm doubly concerned because so many of the backers of our two new directors were the guiding force" during the era the dam EIR was put on hold and other projects investigated.

With a land swap so the proposed New Los Padres Dam will not inundate any portion of the Ventana Wilderness, "there is no reason that the Los Padres Dam Project is not viable."

He called for the elimination of the allocation system, stating that it had become a "nightmare." That system apportions the amount of water a city or the county can use for its current demand and future development. He pointed to when Carmel sued the district to release it from the allocation restrictions which were imposed when there was more water still in the system.

Lombardo said of the new board "I wish them well and Godspeed. The citizens of the district will be eagerly waiting and watching your results."

Carmel postmaster Jack Holt will retire Dec. 1st

AFTER 34 years in the business, Carmel Postmaster Jack Holt is calling it a day.

"I want to spend a Christmas outside the post office for the first time in 34 years," joked Holt in a phone interview Tuesday. His retirement will be effective Dec. 1.

"I just thought it would be a good time to do it," he said on a more serious note. "I'm 59, I still have my health and if I'm going to enjoy it, now's a good time to do it."

The San Francisco-born Holt started out as a substitute clerk/cARRIER with the Monterey Post Office in 1955 and was appointed postmaster in Carmel in February 1983 by the Postmaster General.

What are some of the highlights of the past 34 years?

"Every other Friday when payday comes," he said jokingly. "The postal service has been pretty good to me and my family over the years. And it's been nice because it has enabled me to stay on the peninsula."

Holt said he has seen a lot of changes in the postal service, from delivering the mail by train and sorting it by hand to today's air service and automation. "When I first started out all the carriers walked; now they drive."

Holt and his wife Shirley, who is an award-winning illustrator of children's books, have four children and have made their home in Pacific Grove for more than 26 years.

He is a past president of United Way of the Monterey Peninsula and Leadership Monterey Peninsula, former vice president of Monterey Peninsula Chamber of Commerce,

New planning appointee discovers selection not without controversy

By NANCY HILLS

TERRY THOMAS is the most recent Carmel resident to have to run the political gauntlet to become a Carmel Planning Commissioner.

Thomas will take Bill Brown's seat on the commission, Brown having resigned for business reasons, but similar to those who have recently gone before him, his nomination was not without controversy.

Councilmember Elinor Laiolo protested his appointment to Mayor Jean Grace, stating that Grace had not adhered to the criteria set out by the mayor during the last appointment to the commission.

One was that an appointee should not have any affiliation with a particular political group. Thomas, when appointed, was a Carmel Residents Association board member, though he has left that position.

"I have, of course, resigned from the board of directors of the CRA, since the board takes positions on applications," Thomas said.

Thomas, a retired Proctor & Gamble chemical engineer, emphasized that he would vote against positions taken by the CRA "when those positions are not in the best interest of the city, as I will also vote for them when they are right."

"We are very happy to live in Carmel-by-the-Sea," Thomas said, speaking for himself and his wife, Kay. "That is the reason I volunteered to take this job. Everyone who lives here should be willing to take on the job because it is a wonderful place and we should be happy to do some part in keeping it that way."

Thomas said he and his wife bought their Carmel home in 1976 and, when he retired in 1987, made the town their permanent home. Since then, he has faithfully attended city council, planning commission and water board meetings, often presenting either his own or the CRA board's positions at council and commission meetings.

"It appears to me that the residential area right now is where most of the activity is taking place. The city council is holding its R-1 design workshops and there will be (more) work for the planning commission in that area."

"People in the community have seen some structures built that the community consensus seems to be they should not have been built," Thomas said.

To address further applications, he said, the council and commission must decide "should there be a beefed-up approach to design review and, if so, how, or some slight reduction in site and coverage and floor area of the structure allowed?"

Whichever approach is used, Thomas said, it should address "open space and the inter-relationship of design review and structure size. In my view, we need to provide for more open space or less site coverage. The 60 percent site coverage allowed now is too much. In the discussions on the city council and planning commission, it is my sense they both support some increase in open space."

An ad hoc committee is investigating formation of a design review commission or committee, separate from the planning commission, which would concentrate on design review exclusively. Other cities have this type of commission.

"I want to hear the arguments on both sides of that. I know there are those that believe that the planning commission should be the ultimate design review authority," Thomas said.

Another question the city is beginning to contend with is the demolition of the older homes in Carmel.

"That is a really difficult issue for the whole community. I believe it belongs on the council agenda. The planning commission, I do not believe, can take steps about it without council action," Thomas said.

TERRY THOMAS was appointed to replace Bill Brown on the Carmel Planning Commission. His first meeting as a commissioner is Wednesday, Nov. 29. (Nancy Hills photo.)

Even in the case of the Lincoln Steffens home or the Col. Mack house, both which are on the market, if a new owner approaches the city with an application to demolish either house, the commission's hands are tied, he said.

"As agonizing as it is to say, the planning commission has not been given the authority to prevent demolitions based on historic significance," he observed. "I strongly support the heritage society getting the survey done and working with the city council to investigate an appropriate ordinance that is fair to all."

Planning issues in the commercial district appears to be "very quiet right now" Thomas said, "The planning commission is doing its job reviewing new applications and dealing with use permits.

"I think the commission is working really well together," he added. "I think the way the chairperson, Carla Ramsey, runs the meetings is very good and everyone gets a chance to speak. (The commission) works very hard. There are a lot of subjects — a lot of complicated subjects — to deal with. I've got a lot to learn."

Earthquake caused $1.3 million damage to state parks

THE RECENT earthquake on the Central Coast caused no major irreparable damage to units of the State Park System.

The current estimate of damage to the state parks in the area is $1.3 million. Some of the damage has already been repaired; other repairs will take several months.

Closure and partial closures until further notice remain in effect for the following state park units:

- Seaclick State Beach. Campground closed. No vehicle entry. Cliffs unstable because of sliding.
- Twin Lakes State Beach. Parking lot and walkway closed at San Lorenzo Point, Seabright Beach.
- Wilder Ranch State Park. Park closed. Extensive damage to Victorian house and the bunk house; no estimates available for repair cost and time.
- Moss Landing State Beach. Closed several months. 125 feet of road collapsed; subject to tidal flow at high tide.

• Zmudowski State Beach. No vehicle entry; fissures in the parking lot.

• Big Basin Redwoods State Park. Trails closed because of slides and cracks; need grading and other repair. Fire station chimney collapsed and structural damage to building; may not be repairable. Store chimney cracked; several months to repair. 10,000-gallon water tank damaged; may be repairable — several months. Cracks in road at Huckleberry Campground will be repaired soon.

Damages to several other state park units will have minor effects on visitor use:

- The Forest of Nisene Marks State Park. Slides and cracks in upper road; several months to repair.
- Ano Nuevo State Reserve. Three chimneys collapsed; at the Humphrey House at Cascade Ranch, and at two other buildings.
- All beaches from Monterey to San Francisco Bay remain closed to ocean water contact until further notice because of contamination.

At 15, Dana Bambace has reached top of her profession

By DAVID LELAND

DANA BAMBACE may be No. 1, but she still tries harder, which is why she continues to be one of the foremost junior equestrians in the United States.

'I have to stay in shape for riding so I exercise all week. It's (riding) really fun, it's a release for me.'

— Dana Bambace

Bambace, 15, lives the hectic schedule of most performers, spending the majority of her time on the road. In fact, she doesn't even bother to board a horse at the equestrian center in Pebble Beach near her home.

"I haven't been here hardly at all," said Bambace, the daughter of Carmel retailer and philanthropist Rita Shugart. "So there's no point in having one up here."

Instead, Bambace flies to Southern California to be near her trainers, Lucy and Rusty Stewart, and her horses Leitsatz, Better Than Better and Sealed Bid.

"I feel the training is much better down there," said Bambace. "And it's closer to the horse shows."

Indeed, the majority of the horse shows take place in the southern part of the state, but Bambace has travelled as far away as Canada to enter events.

While at home during the week, Bambace pursues a rigorous training regimen of aerobics, bike riding, walking and running.

"I have to stay in shape for riding so I exercise all week," she said. "It's (riding) really fun, it's a release for me."

This weekend she will take part in the last show of the season, which begins again in late January. She began the standings at No. 3 in the state and now resides at the lofty No. 1 spot, having gained $10,000 in prize money over the past season.

What's a 11th-grade Robert Louis Stevenson School student do with all that money? Why, giving it to her parents. After all, they're the ones who bought her the $100,000 Hanoverian jumping horse.

Bambace said that while she misses just about every Friday of school during the show season, she still manages to pull down a 3.5 grade-point average.

School officials are apparently quite understanding of her lifestyle.

"They're really cool about it," said Bambace, who this year has employed a math tutor to help her with her studies.

WHILE BAMBACE began riding in horse shows at age 10, shortly after moving to Pebble Beach, it wasn't until she began vacationing with the Stewarts in Malibu that she began her riding in earnest.

"It was like summer camp for me," she said. "I'd spend two weeks and just ride."

Now she takes part in more than 30 horse shows annually, participating in the junior (under age 18), class of jumping and hunting.

And while Bambace may be at the top of her riding class now, she is considering early retirement — this is not how she wants to spend the rest of her life.

"I'm not going to pursue it that much further," she said. "I'll slow it down before college."

And while Bambace is sure she wants to attend a college back east, a course of study is still a distant thought.

PEBBLE BEACH resident and No. 1 junior jumper in California, Dana Bambace, 15, has made quite a career for herself in only five years of practicing horsemanship.

"I don't know what I want to study," she said. "I'm only interested in one thing right now."

One can be sure, however, that Bambace will throw herself into any type of study full force — and probably end up No. 1.

She makes history as the county's first woman judge

By DAVID LELAND

AFTER 139 years, Monterey County has its first woman judge, Carmel Valley resident Wendy Clark Duffy.

A lifetime peninsula resident, Duffy, 38, was named as a municipal court judge for the Monterey County Judicial District by Gov. George Deukmejian on Nov. 1.

"I'm thrilled," said Duffy, who began her duties Nov. 14 in the courthouse in Monterey and will transfer to Salinas after Jan. 1. "I think it's going to be a challenge. (And) I think I'm as prepared as a new judge can be."

As one of eight county municipal court judges, Duffy will hear misdemeanors, felony arraignments and preliminary hearings from her bench, which carries an annual salary of $82,054.

For the past 11 years, Duffy has served with the Monterey County District Attorney's Office, where she tried cases from misdemeanor and juvenile to sexual assaults and molestations.

For the past year, she has worked with local law enforcement agencies in reviewing which cases carry enough evidence to be tried by the DA's office.

And while Duffy maintains that she is excited about starting her new position, she will miss the daily action at the DA's office.

"I've been doing this for 11 years, and I've loved every minute of it," said Duffy, who received her bachelor's degree from the University of California, Berkeley in 1974 and her juris doctorate from Boalt Hall in 1977.

"I just felt it was the right time in my life to move onto something different," said

Duffy, who will fill the position created by the Trial Court Funding Act. "Being a judge will be fascinating."

Duffy is a member of the state District Attorneys Association, the State Bar of California, the Monterey County Bar Association and the Monterey County Women Lawyers Association.

FOR DUFFY, who grew up in Pebble

CARMEL VALLEY resident and former prosecuting attorney with the district attorney's office, Wendy Clark Duffy, has been appointed to the municipal court, making her the first women judge in Monterey County. (David Leland photo.)

Beach and attended Santa Catalina School, being named the first woman judge in the county is important, but being a woman is not a prerequisite to making decisions concerning law.

"I don't think that being a woman will affect the way that I judge," said Duffy, who lives in Carmel Valley with husband Tom, a Monterey-based attorney, and her two girls, Cameron, 7, and Robin, 4.

While she agrees that many women indeed have a different, perhaps more encompassing, way of looking at life than their male counterparts, law is most often black and white.

"I don't think being a woman or a man affects decisions based on law and fact," she said. "You just have to call them as you see them and understand that not everyone will be happy with every decision that you make."

In order to be appointed to the bench, Duffy underwent an exhaustive selection process, which began almost a year ago when she applied to the governor's office.

Her application was then reviewed and evaluated by the state bar association. She was notified of the decision by the governor's appointment secretary on the morning of Nov. 1.

And while Duffy may be downplaying her appointment, women attorneys who have been advocating for such a victory are rejoicing.

"It's important to have women on the bench because it reflects the American way of life on all levels," said Robin Matthews-Johnson, a Salinas-based attorney and president of Monterey County Women Lawyers Association.

Matthews-Johnson added that about half,

'I just felt it was the right time in my life to move onto something different. Being a judge will be fascinating.'

— Wendy Clark Duffy

or 155, of the county's attorneys are female. Also, that percentage reflects those facing trials.

Matthews-Johnson said that the Monterey County Women Lawyers Association has been working closely with the California Women Lawyers Association in educating women attorneys on how to apply for judgeships.

She believes that Duffy was a good choice to break the gender gap.

"It's great that she has the opportunity," said Matthews-Johnson, adding that there are currently two more municipal court vacancies in the county. "Her qualifications are exemplary; I'm positive that she'll do a great job."

Laurel Burch lived a real-life rags-to-riches story

By NANCY HILLS

FAT CATS, brilliant birds and a woman who once frequented the welfare line but now flies on the wings of success — all ingredients for one of Carmel's newest galleries.

The Laurel Burch Gallerie opens this weekend on the southeast corner of Monte Verde Street and Ocean Avenue, the product of years of struggle, then triumph, for the real flesh and blood designer Laurel Burch.

Even if the name is unfamiliar, one look at the brightly colored birds and other animals that adorn everything from pendants, posters and coffee mugs should ring a very loud bell.

Though Burch sells her cloisonne jewelry and many other lines internationally to hundreds of boutiques, museums and major department stores, the Carmel location is only her second gallery to showcase her art. Her first is in Sausalito.

"I spent a lot of time in Carmel as a child when I came here with my parents on little vacations. But even if I didn't have that history I would want to be here," Burch said. "It is so beautiful. I have had the good fortune to travel all over the world, to some of the most exotic places, and this is one of the most outstanding."

Making her presentation to the Carmel Planning Commission for her permit was a moment of anxiety, Burch admitted.

"It was such a personal thing to me to win their approval. I thought my heart would jump right out of my chest."

She plans to be at the new gallery to sign her posters and meet the people who come in to see her work. Some who drop by may be her future neighbors, because she also plans on buying a home in Carmel.

"I'm dying to meet the people in the community," she said. "I want to know them and for them to know me. I'm very approachable."

The gallery "is not a jewelry store," she said and will feature her artwork and a 20-year retrospective of her designs, going back to her beginnings when she was an impoverished late-'60s refugee from Southern California to Haight-Ashbury. Burch was then a single mother with two small children to support. She certainly could not afford to buy jewelry, so she designed her own, sometimes beating out the designs in a frying pan.

She worked at a Cost Plus discount store and began to sell her jewelry on the side at street fairs and then to a few boutiques. At times, she had to go on welfare to support her children.

She began with necklaces and earrings made from antique beads, feathers and anything else that caught her eye.

"They were big, big necklaces. Bits of bone, fiber, paint," she said.

In the process, she bought and used 2,000-year-old beads from Egypt and antique beads from China.

A man from Singapore who sold her the 100-year-old Chinese beads showed her work to his contacts in the People's Republic of China.

They were immediately interested in what she was doing, and wanted to meet the designer. So in 1971, before President Richard Nixon opened the door, Laurel Burch received an invitation to visit from the Chinese government.

"During the revolution, (the Chinese) collected all the jewelry, clothing, embroidery, everything and put them in storage," she explained.

The antique beads came from this amassed collection of their past.

"They were amazed that anyone wanted these bits and pieces. It didn't have any value for them at all," Burch said.

They were interested in developing a market and Burch's designs were a means to that end.

While in China, Burch said, she visited their workshops where they made colorful cloisonne lamps and vases. Burch was entranced with the artwork.

"I had never designed anything like that before and when I saw it, I thought, I could use it designing jewelry. I stayed up all night and drew several earring designs and they made samples for me."

"The rest is history. It started a whole new wave of products," she said. "People really didn't do colorful jewelry at that time, but it started out slowly and then it began to catch on."

She was attracted to the vibrancy of the colors, Burch said, and what it could do for her as an artist.

"Color is really something to convey the spirit. The feeling is really a part of it — that inspired emotion that conveys a mood or thought," Burch explained.

She began with colorful stylized birds, and in the 1980s began to branch out into other animals.

"Birds are so uplifting, so mysterious. Bird imagery all over the world has the same kind of response, one of joy and freedom," she said.

Burch designed the product and the Chinese cloisonne artists turned it into reality. She still creates every design for now multi-million dollar company.

Over the years, she has put her designs on almost every medium and its distinctive style has become familiar throughout the United States.

During her ups and downs, successes and failures, Burch has had to cope with an additional problem that would have stopped others in their tracks. She suffers from a genetic bone disease, osteopetrosis, which makes her bones very fragile. They can break at the slightest touch and she has suffered more than 40 fractures over the years. But the disease has also taught her about life in ways she might never have known.

"Coping with that has always been an inspiration for me. It has served me well. It was hard for me to understand when I was little why just getting up and walking across the room and running into a table could cause me to break. It gave me an enormous amount of courage and compassion. I don't wish it on myself — I wish I didn't have it — but it gave me things I probably couldn't have gotten with anything else," Burch said.

That hard-won fortitude has brought her to Carmel.

"You know what my dream is? That people who live here will say to their friends 'You must see the Laurel Burch Gallerie.' That would make me so happy."

New exterior for Fortier's OK'd, unusual museum gets reluctant OK

By NANCY HILLS

THE CARMEL Planning Commission approved a new exterior for the former location of Fortier's Drug store and an unusual request for a museum and sale of a collectable letter.

The commission Nov. 8 approved a change to the now-empty storefront on the southeast corner of Ocean Avenue and Dolores Street.

Property owners Ted and Bob Leidig submitted plans to remodel the single-story building with Spanish tile on the roof, an entrance on the corner, and plate glass windows along Ocean Avenue and Dolores Street. The plans included a band of decorated tile below the windows and wood above.

The news racks now on Dolores Street alongside the building would be relocated across the street.

In another application, a baffled commission approved an application by Arthur Speaker III for a "museum" dedicated to Arthur J. Galambos, a scientist Speaker claims has found the solution to "peace on the planet." In addition to coin medals, philatelic cachets, photographs and "other memorabilia" for display only, Speaker said he would be selling a "framed collectable letter" written and signed by himself.

"Not only is my purpose to sell the letter, it is education for the visitors that come in to browse," Speaker informed the commission.

The museum will be located on Mission Street between Fifth and Sixth avenues. Planning Director Diane White told the commission that museums are an allowed use in that zone.

Commissioners Fred Keeble, Bill Brown and Stephen Poohar all expressed some concern about the appropriateness of the museum.

"The SC zone (service-commercial) is for businesses that serve the needs of the residents," Keeble said. "I don't see how this serves the needs of the residents."

But Commissioner Jack Kennedy pointed out there were other concerns.

"We are treading on First Amendment rights, and are subject to people saying we denied this application because we believe 'they can't do that in Carmel,'" Kennedy responded.

His comment was backed up by attorney Michael Stamp, acting as city attorney, who warned the commissioners against making any judgment based on whether or not they liked the content of the letter or the message promoted by the facility.

Poohar said he was not concerned about the message contained in the building, but exactly what type of displays or merchandise it would contain.

When the commissioners were satisfied that the museum would sell only the letter and all the rest would be for display only, they approved the application.

In other business, the commission:

- Approved the demolition of three small homes on a single lot 70-by-100-foot lot. The staff report stated that the buildings could have local historical significance and are rented for $600 a month. The owner, Sergio Nibbi, told the commission that the buildings were in very poor condition and without foundations. One had been converted into two illegal units.

Linda Anderson spoke against the demolition, stating that the elimination of smaller, older homes that offer an affordable rent is changing the community.

- Approved a reconfiguration of two 40-by-100-foot lots facing San Carlos Street to create two 50-by-80-foot lots facing 10th Avenue.

The Queen Anne-style cottage now located on the lots will be moved and renovated, according to the applicant and representative.

Sharon Lawrence, speaking for Carmel Heritage, requested that the commission continue the application for 30 days to give Carmel Heritage time to research the house and site. The commission denied the request.

- Approved an application by Coach Leather to take over Roxy location on the corner of San Carlos Street and Ocean Avenue. The new store plans to sell 10 percent of its merchandise as discount.

United Way beneficiaries Meals on Wheels: one of many (Editor's Note: The Carmel Pine Cone will run, on a regular basis, articles on the various organizations and agencies that benefit from the charity efforts of the United Way of the Monterey Peninsula. The first of these is on the Meals on Wheels of the Monterey Peninsula.)

MEALS ON Wheels of the Monterey Peninsula provides nutritious, low-cost meals to homebound elderly and disabled members of the community. We prepare and deliver three meals per day, five days a week (Monday-Friday).

The nutritionally-balanced meals served by the program meet the daily requirements set by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Trays include a three-course hot meal, which can be enjoyed when it arrives at noon or reheated later. Another light meal consists of a sandwich, salad and dessert. Trays also include cereal, juice for breakfast, milk and fresh fruit daily. The diet is a non-therapeutic low salt, non-fat diet.

The objectives of the home-delivered meals program are to sustain good physical and mental health and to assist elderly and disabled persons to remain in their homes and independent for as long as possible.

Besides the obvious benefit of nutritious meals, home delivery recipients enjoy the daily social contact with the volunteer driver and feel more secure knowing that someone will visit on a regular basis.

We deliver on four routes in Carmel and three routes in Carmel Valley. We cover all areas including the Highlands and down the coast. We ask for a contribution from our recipients of $3.50 a day.

Meals on Wheels also operates the congregate nutrition program for ambulatory seniors. A complete dinner is served five days a week (Monday through Friday) at noon. We ask for a contribution of $1.75. Along with the noon meal the seniors have an opportunity for socialization.

The Sally Griffin Senior Center offers a variety of senior services and classes. The classes are: exercise, wood carving and crafts. Bridge and pinochle games are also played. Movies are shown every Friday. The services vary from information and referral from the Alliance on Aging to blood pressure checkups and scans physical checkups.

If you know of anyone who may need our program call us at 375-4454, or if anyone would like to volunteer to deliver meals, or help in the kitchen or office please call us at the same number.

Soviet group's visit to promote 'citizen diplomacy'

By DAVID LELAND

THE COMPARISON between last week's toppling of the Berlin Wall and the current peace mission of The New Forum is an obvious one: each opens the chance of meaningful dialogue between citizens of the world.

The timing couldn't have been better for this year's visit to the Monterey Peninsula by student members of The New Forum's counterpart — The Soviet Friendship Committee.

"This is bound to have its tentacles in the lives of many people," said Tatyana Viktorovna, 52, one of four Soviet teachers accompanying four students on a two-week stay in the United States.

"Our task is to promote citizen diplomacy," she said in perfect English. "We make people meet, converse and understand one another better — that's why we are here now."

The New Forum is a bi-partisan group dedicated to educating the public about environmental and nuclear issues.

Last March several peninsula high school students and teachers travelled to the Soviet Union; it was time to return the favor.

Locally, the trip was put together by May Waldroup, owner of Thunderbird Book Store, with students hailing from Moscow, Kiev and Tallinn.

Waldroup believes that reality is the best method for students to form opinions on life in America.

"I'm sure that it's good for them to see good points as well as weak points in our system," she said.

While on the peninsula, students met with high school students, various civic organizations and attended a luncheon at The Lodge in Pebble Beach.

They also spent a weekend in Yosemite National Park with students who travelled to the Soviet Union last spring and discussed ways to continue their ideals of peace between nations.

"We take it upon our personal lives to fulfill the efforts we make to break down the barriers (between people)," said Waldroup, adding that the three-day seminar was made possible by a $10,000 grant from an anonymous donor.

On the peninsula, Soviet guests stayed in host family homes in the cities of Carmel, Pacific Grove, Monterey, Seaside, Marina, Pebble Beach and Salinas.

Even while the Soviet delegation was on the peninsula, plans were already being made for four students and teachers to visit the Soviet Union next spring.

The New Forum pays one half of the transportation costs for each American student and teacher, or about $750.

The Soviet Friendship Committee pays all housing and other expenses of the U.S. delegations, while the New Forum returns the favor.

IT WASN'T all international diplomacy for the visitors during their stay on the peninsula. In their spare time, they took part in recreation activities, such as a visit to Point Lobos State Reserve.

But for the most part, the students learned firsthand about American life, which is somewhat different here than there.

"The students here are more mature than ours," said Viktorovna, who is on staff of the Soviet Peace Committee. "We see our students as children and that's bad. They still feel that they are children when they are 30 years old."

That problem has its roots in the post-revolutionary period, she said, when poor citizens vowed that they would do anything to provide their children with an education and a way out of poverty.

"The only dream for the majority was to make the future generation's life better than theirs," Viktorovna said. "They did everything to make their children study."

But with the advent of World War II, those children, now grown, perpetuated that school of thought with their offspring.

"Now we see that the results are that our children got used to being children all their lives," she said.

But the feeling of oneness far outweighs any differences between the two countries, she said.

"We are all amazed that people are so friendly to us despite these long, long, periods of Cold War," Viktorovna said.

And while Viktorovna noticed the high standard of living and increased level of efficiency in this country, she is still anxious to return home.

DURING A two-week stay on the peninsula, sponsored by The New Forum, Tatyana Viktorovna helped guide four students through a fast-paced mission of peace. (David Leland photo.)

ciency in this country, she is still anxious to return home.

"I was raised up on the feeling that it's my country and I would never every think about living somewhere else," she said.

Besides, it takes two sides to promote peace — witness the tumbling of the Berlin Wall.

"We feel that it is an important step forward," said Viktorovna of the falling of barriers between East and West Germany. "Especially when there is an official declaration on our (Soviet Union) that it is not the business of the Soviet Union."

Search and seizure

THERE ARE many things for which we as Americans can give thanks, and not least among them is our Constitution. In only 200 years it has become the mother of all written constitutions and the oldest one in existence.

As this second year of the celebration of its framing and ratification comes to a close, it is appropriate to remind ourselves of its principal intent, which is to protect the rights of the individual against the power of the state and the majority's perception of what is acceptable.

That the power of the state is intimidating, is an understatement. The implacable coldness of an overloaded legal system can discourage citizens from seeking protection due them. Occasionally there are cases which remind us of our rights, but even these lessons are not universally accepted. Few people disagree with the principles expressed in the Bill of Rights, but many object to specific applications of its protection.

The two applications which create probably the greatest controversy are the Miranda Rule and the Exclusionary Rule. The Exclusionary Rule says, in effect, that evidence seized in violation of a person's right to privacy or without a warrant issued by the court, is seized illegally, and therefore, may not be used in court against the person charged with a crime. It can become considerably more complex than this, but for the present we will try to deal with it in its simplest form.

The basis for this rule, which was extended from federal to state courts in a landmark case in 1961, is that the government cannot become a lawbreaker in order to arrest a suspected criminal. The legal foundation is found in the Fourth Amendment to the Constitution.

The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers and effects against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated, and no warrants shall issue but upon probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the person or things to be seized.

Many people may not be aware of it, but for police officers to obtain a warrant to search a premise, they must go through the exact procedure outlined in the Fourth Amendment. They must go before a magistrate with the exact location to be searched and identify specifically what they are searching for, and they must satisfy the judge that they have "probable cause" to make the search, which means they must have documented evidence of observed criminal activity, reliable witnesses or some other equally damning evidence, and then must swear or affirm in writing that their statements are accurate. The Fourth Amendment was designed to prohibit the "King's Warrants" which allowed authorities to enter a home whenever they pleased to search for incriminating evidence of any kind, without reason to believe that a crime was being committed or that the person in the home was in any way a criminal. These were fishing expeditions.

Evidence of a crime in plain view does not require a search warrant. So, a police officer arrested a parolee for violation of his parole, claiming to have seen the barrel of a gun sticking out beneath the driver's seat of his locked car. The gun existed and was presented in evidence.

It was ruled inadmissible when the man's attorney proved that his client's height was such that it required him to have the car seat so far forward, that it would have been impossible for the officer to have seen anything which might have been underneath it.

Such a ruling prevents a "plant," the placement of evidence by the police to insure a conviction, which there was no reason in this case to believe was intended. Nevertheless, the protection against the possible abuse of police and state power is there through the Supreme Court's interpretation of the protection of the Fourth Amendment.

The landmark case from which the Exclusionary Rule was derived is Mapp v. Ohio. Cleveland police, ostensibly searching a neighborhood for a bombing suspect, knocked on the door of the Mapp home at 11:30 p.m. and Dolores Mapp, who lived alone, refused them entrance. The officers subsequently broke open the door, handcuffed Ms. Mapp in her bathrobe, and proceeded to search the house. They had no warrant.

During the search they discovered nude photos and sex books, which they described in the arrest report as "pornographic literature." Ms. Mapp, a student of metaphysics, claimed the art and the books were essential to her studies. She was convicted of violating an Ohio obscenity statute and her case was appealed eventually to the U.S. Supreme Court.

The court overturned her conviction as a violation of the protection of the Fourth Amendment, and for the first time extended this constitutional protection to the state courts, as well as to the federal. The court said the only way to ensure the state would not abuse its police power was to deny it evidence seized in violation of the individual's constitutional protection. The Court did not say criminal evidence, which is not stated on the warrant, but which is seized during a legal search for other evidence, is inadmissible. A legal search, with a valid warrant, allows evidence of other criminal activity to be seized and presented in court.

A major legal issue in decisions such as this one is the extension of protection under the federal Constitution to the state courts. States have their own constitutions, and many legal scholars argue that if states desire to offer their citizens the same protection as that provided by the federal Constitution, they have the ability to legislate such protection into their state constitutions, but that application by the Supreme Court of such matters to the states is an unwarranted intrusion by the federal government and a misreading of the federal Constitution.

Others have broader objections concerning the "coddling" of criminals and a failure to protect the victims of a crime. It is best to remember, decisions such as Miranda and Mapp occur always as a result of the abuse of power by the state against the individual. Were it not the nature of power to be abusive, we would have no need for constitutional protection in the first place.

Farr helps push through relief proposals

IN A RUSH to speed assistance to the victims of the disastrous Loma Prieta Earthquake the state Legislature passed 11 relief proposals, two of which were authored by Carmel Democratic Assemblyman Sam Farr.

"Thousands of lives have been shattered," said Farr. "This relief won't replace the loved ones and the personal mementos that were lost in the quake, but for now it will keep bread on our tables and roofs over our heads...it's a basic first step."

Working with officials from Santa Cruz

County, Farr authored two key proposals that will:

- Appropriate $32 million for the newly created Fund for Economic Uncertainties to the California Disaster Housing Rehabilitation Fund for rental housing rehabilitation loans. The proposal creates a permanent disaster assistance loan program for the rehabilitation and reconstruction of damaged rental properties and farmworker housing. The fund will be used to provide deferred payment low interest loans of last resort.

- Provide loan guarantees through small business development corporations to conventional lenders such as banks, savings and loans, credit unions, to grant quick "bridge" loans. The proposal will allow short-term loan guarantees to be made for interim financing for small businesses, small farms, nurseries and agriculturally related businesses who have suffered physical damage of significant economic injury.

The maximum amount of a loan guarantee shall be $150,000. The governor is empowered to provide the amount of funding necessary to address the needs of the quake affected areas.

Farr praised the efforts of county officials in Sacramento who facilitated dialog with the governor and legislative leaders to ensure that the bills addressed the immediate concerns of earthquake victims.

The nine bills which become effective immediately will:

- Provide one-quarter cent sales tax for 13 months to fund state costs to raise about $786 million in state general funds.

- Match federal funds to restore non-profit agencies providing essential governmental services. The state would provide the 25 percent matching funds.

- Allow businesses and individuals to carry forward property and casualty losses for five years.

- Replenishes funding for individual and family grant assistance on a consistent basis.

- Creates a fast-track process, with environmental review, for the restoration of the Cypress Freeway in Oakland.

- Speeds use of bond funds for the restoration of state parks that experienced earthquake damage.

- Expands existing state earthquake relief program to apply to all natural disasters.

- Expands the governor's authority to spend disaster dollars wherever necessary. Under the measure, the administration would also create a new disaster account for purposes of the one-quarter cent sales tax revenue.

Measure B approved by 11 votes

and behind by only a few votes, you can't help but wonder which way it's going to go," said 2nd District Supervisor Barbara Shipnuck, who added that staff has been directed to come back before the board with information on how to proceed now that the measure has passed.

First District Supervisor Marc Del Piero, however, never doubted that people care enough about their home county to pass the sales tax.

"I always thought it would pass," he said. "I'm convinced that the general public understands government and what it takes to maintain the quality of life in Monterey County."

The next step, Del Piero said, will likely be to advise all retailers in the county that they must modify their cash registers to reflect the increase.

Also, he said, the county will begin the process of selling bonds to finance the major projects included in Measure B, such as the Highway 101/Prunedale bypass, Natividad Hospital and Carmel Valley Road.

It is illegal for governments to make direct loans, so it is necessary to sell bonds publicly to finance major capital outlays.

Del Piero said it will probably take at least a year until funding is secured.

"It's not something that happens immediately," he said, adding that supervisors will prioritize the list in the meantime.

Some smaller projects, such as a teen center in King City, may receive an immediate start-up using county funds, he said.

Del Piero added that voters can be assured that the money will all be spent on the projects included in the ballot measure.

"We (supervisors) will not spend one dime on a project that voters have not ratified," he said, adding that if there are left-over funds there will be additional public hearings on where it should be spent.

Strasser Kauffman said she had anticipated an uphill battle for the sales tax from the beginning.

"We knew it was touch and go," she said. "It's always difficult to increase out-of-pocket expenses."

She added that the tax is fair because the burden is shared by visitors to the county.

"Visitors put a strain on the infrastructures," she said. "They should share the costs."

BUSINESS BEAT

By David Leland

Check this out

THE COUNTY'S head prosecutor, Michael Bartram, rolled into town for the Nov. 9 CBA meeting with welcome news for merchants who have been on the wrong end of bum checks.

No longer do you have to attempt to track the paperhanger down, try to rationalize not getting the person's license number or become resigned to losing the money for which the check was written.

Enter the District Attorney's Non-Sufficient Funds Check Restitution and Prosecution Project.

Bartram is well aware the bad checks are the bane of small business owners.

"Telling you that bad checks can ruin a business is like preaching to the church choir," he said, adding that several billion dollars are lost by merchants nationwide each year due to bad checks.

He profiled the typical passer as a person who has sloppy accounting habits and forgets there aren't sufficient funds in his account during a purchasing spree.

The professional paperhanger, who hits town for the sole purpose of writing bad checks, is a different animal altogether and does not fall under this innovative program which, after only five weeks in operation, has garnered small businesses about $5,000 in recovered funds from bad checks.

Of course you're thinking that this is one more attempt by government to get your money. Wrong.

The service is performed by a full-time staff with the DA's office and there is no charge for recovering your funds.

Every time a check is collected, the maker must send an additional $25 to the county and sometimes must take a six-hour class for the charge of $50. That's what keeps the program afloat.

Conceivably a person with 10 bad checks totalling $1,500 would have to cough up $1,800 when all charges are levied.

Each time you turn over a check to the DA's office, there is no commitment that you will ask them for help in the future. Also, there is no dollar limit.

Once the DA's office is contacted, they enter the person's name in a countywide database in order to make sure the person is not a pro.

A nice, friendly letter is written asking for the funds. If there's no answer, another nastier letter is sent, which usually does the trick.

No partial payments are accepted by the DA's office.

Advantages to all concerned include: 1) the monies are collected and returned to you faster; 2) the court system is unclogged; 3) it helps identify the real criminal; 4) it takes the burden off of local police.

It should be noted that there are several types of checks that do not fit in with the program. These are:

- Checks over 60 days old from the date of issuance.
- Checks not presented in person by the writer, such as checks sent through the mail. You must witness the signature.
- Two-party checks.
- Stop-payment checks.

• Credit extensions, promises to hold, promissory notes on checks. If the check is post-dated, it constitutes a promissory note.

- Warrants and checks issued by a governmental agency.
- Checks issued by a debtor to a credit adjustment company or collection agency.
- Checks which the holder has first given to any private collection agency for action prior to submission to the project.
- Payroll checks.
- Checks made for installment payments on secured contracts.

For more information call 755-5273. Bartram will also issue a sign to put by your cash register letting prospective check passers know that you mean business.

Earthquake aftermath... While we all know it's quite safe to visit our little hamlet, the immediate weeks following the Oct. 17 quake took somewhat of a financial toll on Carmel, according to a report given the Carmel City Council on Nov. 2.

Losses in revenue due to hostelry tax, sales tax, and parking violations could range between $400,000 and $515,000, according to City Administrator Doug Schmitz.

With that in mind, the city has placed a temporary freeze on two capital improvement projects and six capital outlay items. Savings: $125,420.

Also, several unfilled staff positions will stay that way temporarily. Savings: $80,138.

The good news, if history can be a guide, the business community should bounce back quite soon. In his report, Schmitz cites both Sylmar and Whittier, which, after suffering large earthquakes, were able to recover sufficiently.

On a lighter note... The Crossroads Shopping Center is hosting a holiday open house this weekend between noon and 4 p.m., Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 18 & 19, when all 100 merchants will be decked out in holiday trimmings.

Santa and the Mrs. will greet you with special gifts for all boys and girls visiting the holiday couple. Capture the moment with photos, with all proceeds being donated to the Family Resource Center of the Monterey County. Not bad for only six bucks.

There's tons more excitement and giveaways taking place — stop on by.

Way to go, pres... CBA President Barbara Simmons has been appointed to the Executive Committee of the California Association of Realtors by president-elect Jim Antt.

The 11-member committee reviews any motions or actions that are slated to come before the association's board of directors.

Statewide, the association represents about 136,000 realtors. It's nice to have someone from good ol' Carmel in a position where it counts.

New biz... Giggles in The Crossroads offers a new experience in silliness. In fact, the store has just about everything that a person doesn't need but simply must buy.

Don't believe me? How about salt and pepper shakers shaped like doctors, jukeboxes, body builders and attorneys? Check out their large variety of novelty and gift items.

It's an experience beyond all experiences — it's a party/fun shop for the entire family.

Other new Crossroad businesses include Express D'Orient, continental cuisine that takes you on an international tour of fine dining; and Fashion Images, elegant attire for the discriminating women.

Church chat... The Yellow Brick Road, a new resale shop sponsored by Carmel Presbyterian Church, is fulfilling its purpose.

After only three months of operation, the shop has contributed $3,500 to community needs — The Rape Crisis Center, The Door to Hope; and The American Red Cross.

The store is located adjacent to The Barnyard, facing south on Carmel Rancho Lane.

Special emphasis is placed on gently used and new merchandise from children's clothing and toys to adult clothing, accessories, jewelry, small appliances and collectibles.

Donations are accepted at the church from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Wednesday.

Housing appointment... Carmel Valley resident Bruce Moore has been named to fill the City of Monterey's vacant position of housing officer.

Moore will administer the city's housing program, in ways such as downpayment assistance, housing-related community services and housing rehabilitation.

Meanwhile, back at the radio station

DID YOU notice that it's been three weeks, rather than two weeks, since my last column? You're very observant! I was working on and then recovering from the Fall Trade Fair that I covered endlessly in the two preceding columns. It was a great success and lots of fun, I'm happy to report.

But now that it's over, let's get back to the current topic: local radio stations! (I'm covering three per column and am following alphabetical order — my friends at KXDC have a long wait!) Give that CD or cassette player a rest and sample the aural pleasures offered in the area:

KHDC, at 90.9 FM, is a multi-lingual, multi-cultural station offering music, public service messages, community relations, news, current or new information on immigration, all in eight languages: Spanish, English, three dialects of Filipino, Native American, Japanese, Vietnamese, Guamanian and French. Talk about a potpourri!

The station is supported by paid advertisers as well as grants, since it is a member of the Corporation for Public Broadcasting. The multi-lingual, multi-cultural format has been in place since 1986, and is still growing.

Sometimes Jose Arreguin, program director, gets the feeling he may be in another country while listening to one of the foreign language programs. In fact, some of the hosts of those programs forget that Jose only (only!?) speaks Spanish and English, and try communicating with him in their native tongues.

Jose and the KHDC staff welcome calls from all cultures, and who knows? Your native language may be the next to join the format! KHDC can be reached at 757-8039.

KHIP at 93.5 FM on the LED broadcasts from Salinas, with

Pat Kelley, program director, doubling as "the morning man" from 6 to 10 a.m. daily. On Oct. 1, the station celebrated brand-new ownership with a brand-new format known as "all-new oldies radio — 98.5 FM KHIP."

The central coast is the 75th largest audience in the U.S., and KHIP wanted to appeal to the mainstream "golden oldies" audience with a format appealing to 25-to-54-year-olds. Every song they play was a Top-10 hit when it was current.

Of course, even though they play oldies, they have a very forward-moving contemporary presentation as we launch into the 21st century, with very bright, upbeat and friendly on-air personalities.

The station's goal is to be very high-profile in the areas of community visibility and involvement. "It's important in this business to get out there, say 'Hi' and shake hands with the people," according to Pat. One of the ways they plan to accomplish this is to co-sponsor local events in the different listening areas they cover.

Pat looks forward to hearing from you at 757-2977.

KNRY 1240 AM is the only all-talk radio station, as well as probably the oldest station, in the area, having first gone on the air in 1935. According to Claude Barnett, general manager, (and one of my buddies on the chamber's Small Business Committee), their emphasis is local community involvement. They offer a two-hour local talk show from 9 to 11 a.m. daily, covering whatever happens to be the current "hot" topic. Recently, that's been earthquake, earthquake and more earthquake; previously there was extensive coverage on the water issue.

From 7:25 to 8:25 is all local news with veteran newscaster Jack Parr, and a big plus for us yuppie-types is CNN news every hour, so we can be on top of global news "as it happens." They carry the Larry King show at night, and for you sports fans, KNRY offers live coverage of the A's, 49ers, and LA Lakers.

Oh, a most important program aired by KNRY is the Monterey Peninsula Chamber's "current events" segment (did you hear me a few weeks ago, plugging the Trade Fair?). Tune in at 7:15 a.m. on Saturday mornings to catch this worthwhile events calendar.

For further information on KNRY's programming and community focus, call Claude at 373-1234.

Stay tuned for profiles of the additional stations I'll be featuring in future columns!

Auction action

AUCTIONS ARE a popular way of raising funds for non-profit organization. A natural instinct is always present hoping for a genuine bargain on something we desire. An auction is often the avenue to those bargains. Silent or live auctions are combined with other activities and for social fun, always fit well after food and beverages.

Forest Theater Guild, Carmel Bach Festival and Art-at-the-Airport Exhibition Program held auctions this past week.

"Tour de Farce" was the title (used for the second time), by the Art-at-the-Airport Program. However, two words were added — "The Sequel." The first Art-at-the-Airport exhibit opened back in December 1987 featuring works of Gus Arriola, Eldon Dedini and Hank Ketcham.

Following wine by Monterey Wine Country Associates and food by the Monterey Plaza Hotel, The Sequel was strictly an auction. The public was invited to star in this larger-than-life cartoon display by getting a piece of the auction. The art gallery idea was suggested by J. Patricia Faul, a member of the MP Airport District board.

Ilene Tuttle (art consultant), Russ Haisley, Claude Bennett, Jean Brenner, Patricia Faul and Tracy Morrison worked with other committee members to arrange the auction that brought in some $8,000 for continuing art installations at the airport.

Auctioneers David Armanasco and Alan Brenner had no difficulty gaining bids. "Dennis On a Bike" (cutout), brought in the evening's top bid from Lynn Barnes of Salinas, who also bought a cartoon with Dennis saying as he watched his father break his golf clubs, "See? That's another dumb thing about growin' up...even the things you do for FUN aren't any fun." (Hank's a great golfer, so it couldn't have been him.)

A Monterey Plaza Hotel guest from Riverside came down to the ballroom and bought my favorite Eldon Dedini of a lady traveler with luggage tag reading "You name it, I've been there." Kip Hudson bought my Gus Arriola favorite, "Lopez Far Out One-Way Tours," measuring 60-by-76. Carmel Mayor Jean Grace walked away with a walking Dedini "Duck."

Karen Juhring traveled home with the traveler reading the weight & fortune scale for his luggage: "You weigh 44 lbs. You're going on a long trip. You'll be lost 7 days." Airport manager Denis Horn did his share of bidding.

Even Gus, Eldon and Hank bios were up for sale. Hank's read "Seattle, Hollywood, D.C. New York, Switzerland and Pebble Beach." Eldon's "King City Loves New York and Monterey, New Yorker 37 years." Gus's "Born Mexico, age 8 came to LA, drew fl for 44 years."

Gus and Eldon were there to autograph purchases. Hank was indisposed, but will willingly do so later. Walt Stewart bought Gus's "Airport Bus" and David Armanasco bought the 4-foot-by-6-foot cutout of the three famous MP cartoonists. He will give it to Doc's Lab Men's Club. Charlie Page bought Eldon's cartoon: "Don't be frightened it's just Hamlin, Morris, Updike, Watkins and Pall, Inc." It will be changed to read "Hoge Fenton Jones & Appel."

"An Enchanted Evening at La Playa," the auction held by the Forest Theater Guild, was so successful ($20,000), that it will be an annual event said Guild VP Peter Newman.

Theater people and people who love theater have lots of spirit and energy and it was a spirited evening as the invitation predicted. Bidders were thrilled with the real bargains they won as auctioneers Clay Larson and John Keller brought their gavels down as they shouted "sold."

Jean and Willard Hawke are delighted that they will go on their third or fourth cruise this year. Who's counting? Their $4,000 was the evening's top bid for 14 days in the Caribbean aboard a ship of the Royal Cruise Line. The Brad Dows won the Cole Weston photograph and the Carol Chapman poster. Rhonda Williams will be sitting in an antique Dutch Renaissance chair and Renate West will be gazing at an original oil by Martin Weekly.

Two mockups by Hank Ketchum went to Ed Magner and the Brett Weston photo to the Dave MacMillans. Bill Bates donated a cartoon litho along with many other generous Carmel donors. All were snapped up like hotcakes, making it easy on the auctioneers.

We all know now that Measure B did squeak by, by 11 votes. But Saturday night all the votes had not been tabulated. What was meant to be a celebration of the measure's passage took place in the dark, so to speak.

The Hyatt Regency Grand Ballroom was stunningly decorated for the "Pennies From Heaven" dinner/dance. Bright, shiny pennies were scattered about on the tables with gaily colored umbrellas to be held upside down to catch more pennies. A stately rose was placed by every place setting courtesy of Kanny Gatanaga nursery in Salinas.

The "no non-cents" committee headed by Morley Brown saw that this was no penny-plain or penny-pinching affair, the bill of fare listed Penny (ante pasta salad), Nickel (needle noodles), Dime (of-your-life veggies), Quarter (of sauced stuffed chicken), and Dollar (daze white chocolate mousse in an orange.) All yummy.

Entertainment was truly heavenly. Master of ceremonies Myles Williams sang upbeat oldies (with Hal Harris at the

THINKING OF bidding for Gus Arriola's "Lopez Far Out One Way Tours" at "Tour de Farce" auction were (left to right): Ilene Tuttle (art consultant), John de Canha (VP and general manager of Monterey Plaza), and auctioneers Alan Brenner and David Armanasco. All worked on the auction.

ARTIST ELDON Dedini conversed with Becky Flavin and Lee Tevis at airport auction. Becky held one of Eldon's cutouts and Lee stood by a larger-than-life woman whose luggage states, "You name it, I've been there."

CARMEL ARTISTS Gus Arriola and Eldon Dedini, both carrying large cutouts of their work, met at the auction to benefit Art-at-the-Airport program.

VOLUNTEER AUCTIONEERS Clay Larson and John Keller talk over items with Peter Newman, chairman of the Forest Theater Guild auction, which was held at La Playa Hotel in Carmel. (Chuck Scardina photos.)

COLE WESTON, photographer, director, actor and donor to the Forest Theater Guild auction, stopped to try the hors d'oeuvres before the auction.

$2,500 check from state Assemblyman Sam Farr and Barbara Shipnuck thanked Nick Ventimiglia (past president of the board), and Carol Lacy.

The Monterey Bay Symphony Half-Penny Trio played for dancing 'til midnight.

While auctions were prevalent on last week's social agenda, so was art. The leader in Central Coast art, and often in sheer fun, is the MP Museum of Art. Bringing mirth and joy this time were the 44 docents of La Mirada, a branch of the museum.

A special tea party was inspired by ornaments on a special tree. No, not those of Festival of Trees, which will preview at a gala Nov. 29 at the fairgrounds. Rather, "The Mad Hatter's Tea Party" earned its emphasis from the 105 figurines constructed by New York sculptor, Graham Halky, who went through the looking glass to bring to life the 150-year old children's classic tale by the Rev. Charles Lutwidge Dodgson (better known as Lewis Carroll). The artist used John Tenniel's illustrations and they were on loan from Peggy and Robert Noel, who purchased them at Sotheby's in New York.

Guests walked through the looking glass to receive a silent greeting by a 5-foot rabbit made by Monique Gardiner. Then they were greeted by a real live Mad Hatter (Jerry Walker), and Alice (Stacy Henderson), serving sherry.

The sherry was forgotten for the moment as everyone stood amazed by the "Alice Tree" filled with: Cheshire Cat, Dormouse, Mock Turtle, Frog Footman, the Jury Box, Bread and Butterfly, Humpty Dumpty, White Knight on Horseback, Walrus, Jabberwock, Tweedle Dee and Dum, etc. All from the childhood book that we continue to cherish all of our lives.

Tea tables were set up in the main salon, The Queen's Croquet Court and the Rabbit Hole. Dorothy Singleton and Ellie Hanson (and assistants), hand-decorated white rabbits as centerpieces. Topiaries and living wreaths from La Mirada Garden Shop brought beauty and fresh outdoor perfume as they awaited buyers.

Norma Lee and Henri Pike (chairpersons), not only arranged an elegant tea and a stunning tree, they capped it off with a show of fashions from the Carmel Plaza shops presented by Judy Cole and Dotty Murphy.

Jean Mahoney, Marg Cox, Diane Hardcastle, Jackie Edwards and vivacious Dotty modeled holiday apparel from Saks Fifth, I. Magnin, Talbots, Mondi and Georgiou with Jewels by Jeffrey.

La Mirada events have a habit of selling out fast, thus demanding a repeat. It happened with the Bill Bates talk for Salon VI and again with "Mad Hatter's Tea."

Music is as much a part of the cultural fabric as is art. "Four Centuries of Voice and Keyboard" was a concert with soprano Marnie Shooter and Katie Clare Mazzeo at the keyboards.

The concert including John Dowland, Henry Purcell, Mozart, Schubert, Beethoven, Chopin, and Aaron Copland was given Sunday afternoon at Hacienda Carmel.

Last year Glenn Bernhardt did the colorful cartoon for the cover of the Boy Scout Holiday Auction, showing scouts decorating a tree and being startled as a live bird pokes his head out. The seventh annual auction for the Boy Scouts is due into the Monterey Sheraton on Dec. 8th under the general chairmanship of William Hurley with Sheriff "Bud" Cook as honorary chairman.

Bidding on a Honda motorcycle, a 1977 Peugeot, a new Ford auto, 49ers tickets, an Arabian mare and fine crystal and sterling stemware should warm up the ballroom considerably as KMST's Carl Bell does a live weather telecast from the Sheraton and serves as an assistant to auctioneer Stephen Magyar.

IRENE AND Frank Crispo, Catherine O'Boyle and Robert Sageman at one of the gaily decorated tables set up for "Pennies from Heaven" event.

DOROTHY SCARDINA sang a couple of tunes at "Pennies from Heaven" fund-raiser at Hyatt Regency.

DORIS JONES, Clarice Pruitt, Marvin Loewith and Margarite Alvarez with umbrellas at the ready. Doris, Marvin and Margarite were on "Pennies" committee. Clarice came as Marvin's guest.

PIANIST HAL Harris chatted with "Pennies from Heaven" general chairperson Morley Brown and emcee Myles Williams. (Chuck Scardina photos.)

NICK VENTIMIGLIA and Dr. Ron Weitzman rest a moment from work on the "Pennies from Heaven" committee. Surrounding them were (left to right), Kip Glassetter, Madeline Ross, and Carol Lacy.

For dinner and early Christmas shopping, tickets are $75 with RSVP by Nov. 30. The Sheraton will offer couples a room for the night for $75 with the hotel staff donating half of that to the Boy Scouts of the Monterey Bay Area Council.

Even before November comes to an end, "Visions of Christmas" (Festival of Trees theme this year), will be opened with a Grand Gala Nov. 29, 6 to 8 at the Monterey Fairgrounds. The festival will run Nov. 30 through Dec. 3.

Knubis Advertising/Public Relations has moved to new offices at 432 Alvarado St., second floor.

Made in Hayama

IN ORDER to foster friendship and possible sister city relationship between the cities of Carmel and Hayama, Japan, artists from Hayama have their artworks displayed at the Sunset Cultural (through Nov. 30). Fifteen of the 20 artists appeared at a reception at the center, including (above), painter Tatsuko Nagai (third from left), who was joined by (left to right), interpreter and peninsula resident Eriko Iwamoto, Lequita Vance-Watkins, and Showemon Tsunoda, who owns a restaurant in the seaside town with magnificent vistas of Mount Fuji. At a reception later at Kogetsu restaurant in The Crossroads, Marina mayor George Takahashi joined Hayama residents Tsunoda, Nagai, and E. Hayama, to break open a ceremonial keg of sake. Residents of Hayama, after visiting Carmel three years ago, were struck by the similarity between the two cities — their seaside locations and significance of art and culture to both cities, among other things — that a move was made to establish a relationship between the two, resulting in the display at Sunset Center. ### Financing Your Future

Q. How much do I need to save for retirement?

A: The amount you will need for retirement depends on several factors, including the income you'll need to sustain your standard of living, the savings you already have, the number of years until you retire and the growth rate you can expect from your invested dollars.

First, figure out how much income you'll need during retirement. Remember that you will no longer have some expenses, such as child-rearing costs.

You'll receive some retirement income from Social Security, and more from your employer's pension plan. You can find out how much to expect from Social Security by requesting a Personal Earnings and Benefit Estimate Statement. Call 1-800-937-2000 to request the necessary forms. Also, contact your company's benefits officer for a report on your pension benefits.

Social Security and pension benefits will only provide some of the income you'll need. The rest must come from regular savings. A Chartered Life Underwriter (CLU) or Chartered Financial Consultant (ChFC) can help determine whether you are saving enough based on the number of years until retirement and your life expectancy.

The Big Sur International Marathon and The Walk distributed $24,200 recently to 21 agencies, groups and schools on the Monterey Peninsula.

St. Philip's will conduct mortgage burning

Nov. 19 marks a day of celebration for St. Philip's Lutheran Church on Carmel Valley Road. The congregation will hold a mortgage burning during the morning worship service at 9 a.m.

In addition, the church will hold Thanksgiving Eve services at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 22 at the church.

St. Philip's was first envisioned in 1960 by Dr. and Mrs. John Gronli, a retired Lutheran missionary. In 1965, the decision was made to establish the church. Pastor J. Bernhard Bretheim was called to be the organizing minister. His efforts along with those of the congregation and parish worker Marilyn Rossing culminated in the official organization of St. Philip's as a mission congregation of the American Lutheran Church on May 1, 1966.

In January 1967, the building site on Carmel Valley Road was acquired and the building was completed in June of that year. With much dedication on the part of the congregation, the mortgage was paid off in a final fund drive in 1987 and 1988. The mortgage was paid off in December 1988.

During its 23-year history, St. Philip's has been served by six ministers. Rev. Bretheim was succeeded by Rev. George W. Schardt, Rev. Walter Vrudny, Rev. Luther Berven, Rev. Maynard Midthun, and Rev. William Jeffs.

Midthun, pastor when the final fund drive began, will be preaching at the service on Sunday, Nov. 19 on the theme "God's Wind Beneath Our Wings." He and interim pastor Rev. Amy Onstad will be officiating at the service.

An Indian maharaja who was assassinated because he delayed in liquidating his arch-rival once observed: "To walk is better than to run, to stand is better than to move, to sit is better than to stand, to lie better than to sit and to be dead is the best of all."

He got his wish.

How much this dismal view of life we attribute to a debilitating climate of India we do not know, but Montaigne's phrase is more acceptable: "Let death take a man still planting cabbages."

Without vitality, life becomes as void of gaiety and zest as a wood where no birds sing. O Lord, may we always keep active working for you through our neighbors. Finally, may we remember that we've reached old age when all we exercise is caution.

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

You are never too old to stop smoking and thus reduce the risk of cancer and heart disease, the National Institute on Aging advises. A survey of 3,000 persons, ages 50 to 75, revealed that one in four had never tried to quit. Of those who succeeded in quitting, 90 percent did it on their own. The most popular techniques included throwing away all cigarettes, reducing the number smoked, setting a quitting date, and using substitutes. Sixty-five percent of those who had not yet quit said they'd like to.

Betty Friedan, whose book "The Feminine Mystique," was important in the women's movement in the 1960s, has turned her attention to attitudes about aging. Now 68, she says: "Our country has been obsessed with youth for far too long... We have the reality of people 60 and older who are breaking through this denial of age and defining for themselves a good life that doesn't seek the fountain of youth but instead affirms the fountain of age."

RUDOLF SMUTNY'S version of works by Smutny exhibited at the Dooley Daubigny's "Evening" is one of the many

Smutny's paintings currently on display at Dooley Gallery

RUDOLF SMUTNY'S son, Robert, once told Helen Dooley that sometimes people would buy his father's paintings right off the easel as he painted the old masters in the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York.

Several of Smutny's paintings are currently on display at the Dooley Gallery on San Carlos and Sixth Avenues in Carmel, and the show has been extended to Nov. 30.

Smutny was born in Brno (Brund) the capital of the province of Moravia, now in Czechoslovakia. He studied photography in his native city and held a national scholarship from the Austro-Hungarian government for the study of art at the Graphische Anstalt in Vienna for two years. He also studied art in New York at the National Academy of Design.

After immigrating to the United States he shifted from photography to painting. Some of his work may be seen in America's Taj Mahal, the Singing Tower of Florida by Edward W. Bok, and in The Architectural Sculpture of the State Capitol in Lincoln, Nebraska by Charles Harris Whitaker and Hartley Burr Alexander.

"I think the paintings are exceptional. They are some of the best copies of the 17th and 18th centuries," said Dooley. "If you can't have an original, owning one of Smutny's copies is a wonderful substitution."

Dooley has devoted most of her life to painting and teaching. She met Smutny's son while teaching at the University of the Pacific, and sometime after his father died he contacted Dooley about showing some of his father's work.

Frohman Academy has new director, activities

GLORIA ELBER got her first taste of the Frohman Academy several years ago when she choreographed one of its shows; now she finds herself as head of the Carmel Valley-based musical theater school.

Elber was recently appointed the new director of the Frohman Academy for Musical Theatre Education after serving as the academy's director of Educational and Community Programs for five years.

"I love it. I am fortunate to have been in-

'I love working with the kids. The reward is in helping them to develop their talents.'

— Gloria Elber

volved in everything so that I understand the grassroots of teaching, directing, and supervising. I intend to continue being active on every level," said Elber.

Elber has an extensive background in dance on the Monterey Peninsula. She trained at the San Francisco Ballet, the Dance Spectrum and locally with Olga Ziceva of the Imperial Russian Ballet.

She was the artistic director of the Monterey Peninsula Dance Theatre, head of the dance division at the Hidden Valley Institute of the Arts, and has directed and choreographed musicals and ballets for Monterey Peninsula College, Ballet Fantasque, the Wharf and Barnyard theaters.

Elber was asked to choreograph the Frohman Academy's production of Little Mary Sunshine more than five years ago. They liked her work so much they asked her to stay on. She replaces Mike Pippi, the academy's first executive director.

The academy, which operates out of the old Carmelo School in the valley, offers young artists from California's central coast and from across the nation to work alongside top name professionals from the Broadway stage. Students learn first-hand the realities of musical theater as a profession.

"I love working with the kids. The reward is in helping them to develop their talents. I tell the students that the 'overnight stardom' concept is not true. Musical theater requires a lot of hard work and discipline," said Elber.

The academy was established in 1983. It is funded primarily by the Sidney Frohman Jr. Foundation for the Performing Arts. Frohman, a Carmel resident prior to his death in 1980, loved the peninsula and the theater. He came from a long line of theatrical professionals, including Daniel and Charles Frohman, both noted Broadway producers.

Students from 8 to 18 years old are invited to participate in the academy's programs that range from free "Artist-In-School" and "Artist-In-Residence" classes offered to children of Monterey County public schools.

The Frohman program is not designed to motivate a child. Children need to show an interest first. The program requires hard work which can be fun if the student really wants to be part of musical theater, said Elber.

THE FROHMAN Academy, based in Carmel Valley, offers musical theater education for young students with a variety of programs and workshops. Gloria Elber has recently been appointed the academy's new executive director.

students with admission fees.

Many students participate in the program year after year. The hard work and discipline practices carry over into their lives. The academy prepares children to become qualified performers. Desire more than talent is the most important aspect to becoming successful, said Elber.

Mariachi Mixtlan will perform in earthquake benefit concert

MONTEREY PENINSULA College Community Services will present Mariachi Mixtlan de la Bahia de Monterey in a benefit performance Saturday, Nov. 18, to benefit earthquake victims. The program will be presented from 8 to 10 p.m. in the Monterey Peninsula College Main Theatre.

All money collected from concert donations and an auction of selected mariachi memorabilia will go to the MPC Earthquake Relief Fund to help earthquake victims in the North Monterey County and Watsonville areas.

Mariachi Mixtlan was formed in 1980 by William Faulkner. Non-traditional in its composition, the band includes non-Hispanics and women musicians. The band has traveled to Mexico, taken first place honors at the 1987 International Mariachi Competition in Tucson, Arizona, and its director was invited to perform at the Edinburgh Music Festival.

Today's band is comprised of 12 Monterey Peninsula musicians who perform for the Monterey Merienda, California Rodeo in Salinas, the Carmel Mission Fiesta, the Monterey Posadas and Gilroy Garlic Festival.

Saturday's concert marks Mixtlan's first local large scale concert since 1985, and affords an opportunity to hear selections not often featured in performances, including the original compositions that helped Mixtlan take first place at the 1987 Tucson International Mariachi Competition. Also included will be a number of older traditional pieces that are not often heard.

Complimentary aguas frescas, traditional fruit beverages, will be served at intermission.

Tickets, $10 each, may be obtained in advance from the Monterey Peninsula College Community Services Office or at the door the night of the benefit. For information, call the Community Services Office at 646-4051.

MONTEREY PENINSULA'S popular mariachi band, El Mariachi Mixtlan (de la Bahia de Monterey), will perform in a special benefit to help victims of the recent earthquake. The event is set for 8 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 18 at the Monterey Peninsula College Main Theater. Donation is $10 per person. Tickets are available at the door or from MPC's Community Services Office at 646-4051.

Pomeroy Gallery will celebrate 19th anniversary

IN CELEBRATION of their 19th anniversary, a champaign reception will be held for romantic impressionist Bela Bodo at the Pomeroy Gallery of Fine Arts, located on San Carlos between Ocean and Seventh, in Carmel, on Saturday, Nov. 18, from 2 to 8 p.m.

As an impressionist, Bodo stands out with his use of dazzling and dramatic colors. While he can paint virtually any region of the globe, the Monterey Peninsula, Tahoe, San Francisco and Laguna Beach are his favorites. Each region lends itself to seasonal terrain, brilliant wildflowers, ever-changing scenery, sheltered inlets, and jewel-like shores.

Born in Hungary, Bodo studied under the country's foremost artist, Istvan Csok. This apprenticeship allowed him entrance into the Budapest Academy where he continued his formal training under the great masters Barcsay, Szonyi, and Szalai.

Arriving in the United States in 1957, Bodo co-authored the book 32 Painting Lessons in Oils (for Walter Foster Publishing Co.). Displaying his excellence in draftsmanship, form, color, and impressionistic technique, it confirmed his talent before the American public. Internationally collected, Bodo is renowned for his nostalgic imagery of young love, romantic Sunday strolls, and gay family outings.

The Reid Gardner collection will also be shown. Gardner remains a legend in the field of still life painting despite his death in 1976. A perfectionist even in his final years, Gardner was known to work for many months to complete a single painting. Occasionally, years were devoted to refining a particular composition. Winning numerous prizes and awards in national competitions, for Gardner, technique reigned supreme, more important than visual impact.

For more information, contact Carol Pomeroy at 625-1213.

POMEROY GALLERY in Carmel celebrates its 19th anniversary with a reception honoring artist Bela Bodo, 2 to 8 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 18 at the gallery on San Carlos between Ocean and Seventh. Information's at 625-1213.

MUSIC CORNER

By Nathalie Plotkin'

Learning stages

THE SHANGHAI Quartet, a well-schooled, still maturing group, was heard in concert in Sunset Center under the auspices of the Chamber Music Society of the Monterey Peninsula, by a well-nigh full house.

The members of the quartet, Wei-Gang Li and Hong-Gang Li, violins; Zheng Wang, viola and Kathy Jarka, cello, have been playing together for four years. Most of this time was spent under the tutelage of the Vermeer Quartet, the Tokyo Quartet and as Graduate Ensemble-in-Residence at the Juilliard School. They are now the Quartet-in-Residence at the University of Richmond in Virginia.

Their playing, which shows methodical and deliberate planning each step of the way, made this listener realize that they are, even now, in the learning stages of their profession.

They are very brave to go on a national concert tour at this point in their musical development, particularly since they gave the impression of not being completely at ease with the Western musical idiom of their program. Also, better instruments than the ones they have would help their sound.

An element of caution was apparent in the performance of the Beethoven Quartet in F Major op. 18, no. 1. They began uneasily, employing a wispy tone and unsteady pacing. However, as the music progressed, better volume and intensity was added. Some rubatos were planned and well executed, but are not indicated in the score. (Chinese music, on the other hand, inculcates a great deal of rubato.)

The Adagio went well as the four instruments engaged in elegant conversations. Again a development section reached a degree of intensity and came alive with dramatic dynamics. The Scherzo was small scaled and in the Trio, the first violin sparkled. In the Finale, there was more spontaneity, but then it almost got out of control. The Quartet does nearly all the right things, but they give the impression of playing like contest winners who learned the piece with a coach for a specific performance. They need the authority that normally develops with age and experience.

An interesting novelty, the Song of the Ch'in for String Quartet (1982) by Zhou Long was played next. The composer, who is a member of ASCAP, is currently enrolled in the doctoral program in composition at Columbia University. The ch'in is a traditional Chinese seven-stringed zither. The work begins in a typically Oriental vein, with the quartet imitating the actual sounds of the ch'in very skillfully. The music called for the full gamut of the possible ways to play stringed instruments from emphatic pizzicatos to filmy tremolos sul ponticello, all demanding exactness and discipline. The music's scope broadened and changed, sounding not unlike Bartok, with very contemporary thinly drawn lines. The playing was flavorful and evocative.

The Brahms Quartet in C Minor op. 51, no. 1, was a more accessible composition for the group. The sense of involvement and dedication was greater and the tensions of the music were well brought out. Balance was excellent and the overview of the entire work was carefully thought through and then accomplished.

The Romanza was an example of cool and somehow rational romanticism in a small scale version. The Allegretto was a gem, pulsing and breathing and always lucid. The tone was surprisingly warm and full, showing that the players can indeed create such an ambiance. The Finale had strength and the restless sense it requires to become fully effective.

As an encore, Chinese Girl, a folk tune arranged for string quartet, was a lighthearted, warm sendoff for the large and appreciative audience.

Box and Cox

Children's Experimental Theatre and Unicorn Theatre Presents will mount a special twin benefit performance of a comedy double bill, the 19th century drawing room comedy Box and Cox and the classic Punch and Judy.

Carey Crockett and Robert Colter have been performing Box and Cox since 1983 on a variety of peninsula stages. The puppets and scenery in the classic slapstick Punch and Judy were designed by Crockett and are close approximates to the classic Punch and Judy puppets of early 19th century. The characters are brought to life by Colter and Thane Christopher, with additional voices by Barbara Zito and Crockett.

These performances will help support Children's Experimental Theatre and Unicorn Theatre Presents programs. The shows will be held two nights only, at 8 p.m. Friday, Nov. 17 and Saturday, Nov. 18 at the Wharf Theater on Fisherman's Wharf in Monterey. All tickets are $10. For reservations or information call Center Stage Ticketing at 649-5561 or 624-1531.

Saint Joan

The Staff Players Repertory Company has opened its 1989-90 season with George Bernard Shaw's St. Joan.

Moved by voices, Joan of Arc secured armor and troops, becoming a leader of the French in driving the English claimants from France. She was adored and followed by the soldiers and citizens of France, and managed to have the cowardly Dauphin crowned in Rheims cathedral.

Later the French leaders raised no hand to rescue the kidnapped Joan, and she was burned in Rouen square in 1431 as a witch and a sorceress.

Shaw used actual trial records to shape this portrait of a maverick.

Marcia Gambrell Hovick directs St. Joan, which will be staged at 8 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays and 2 p.m. Sundays through Nov. 18. The Indoor Forest Theater is at Mountain View and Santa Rita in Carmel. For reservations, call the Staff Players Repertory Company, 624-1531; or Center Stage Ticketing, 649-5561.

Private Lives

Final performances of Noel Coward's Private Lives will be staged this weekend by The Frohman Academy at Monterey's New Wharf Theatre.

Harrison Shields directs this comedic classic, which features sets by Carey Crockett and costumes by Bonnie McIninch. The cast includes Shields, Connie Erickson and Jim Jensen, as well as Marlie Avant and Nancy Methenitis.

Performances are set 8:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 8 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 10-12. Tickets are $10 for adults and $5 for children. For advance tickets, call The New Wharf Theatre at 649-3032 or Center Stage Ticketing at 649-5561. The theater is located on Old Fisherman's Wharf in Monterey.

Daughter of the Desert

A 19th century melodramatic classic, Daughter of the Desert, is staged weekly at California's First Theatre.

Curtain is at 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays through November.

The theater, the oldest in the state, is located at the corner of Scott and Pacific streets in historic downtown Monterey.

Tickets are $6 for adults, $5 for seniors and teens and $4 for subteens. The theater box office is open 1 to 5 p.m. Wednesdays and Thursdays and 1 to 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays.

For tickets or information, call 375-4916 or 649-5561.

Frankie & Johnnie in the Claire de Lune

The GroveMont Theater will open its 1989-90 Season of New Plays with TERENCE McNALLY's Frankie and Johnnie in the

Claire de Lune with a 8 p.m. previews Wednesday, Nov. 22 and Friday, Nov. 24, followed by an Opening Night Gala with wine and refreshments at 8 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 25 at the GroveMont Theater Arts Center at 320 Hoffman in New Monterey.

The production will run at 8 p.m. Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays and one matinee at 2 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 10. Cafe seating opens one hour before showtime with a variety of sandwiches, Hors d'oeuvres, desserts, beer, wine and soft drinks available before the show and at intermission.

Directed by GroveMont resident director Sid Cato, the production will feature a two-person cast, GroveMont's artist-in-residence John Rousseau and Monterey actress Kathy Deskin-Jacobs.

The production is a humorous and romantic love story that "intertwines classical music, the dread of loneliness, the fear of commitment, and the need to hold and be held into a beautiful and unforgettable chronicle in these alienated times," says local dramatist Dan Gotch.

Due to strong language and some nudity, the production has been rated R by the management and no children will be allowed. The production will play weekends through Dec. 23. Tickets are $8.50 general admission, $7 for students, seniors and military Thursdays and Sundays; $9.50 and $8 Fridays and Saturdays, and can be obtained by calling Center Stage Ticketing at 649-5561. For reservations call 649-6852.

Confirmation

NEWS BREAK: If this were a daily journal, we'd have a flat-out scoop on our hands. Not to complain. It's still a good story about humanitarian concerns.

Just a few minutes ago, the confirmation came. Carlos Santana will play an earthquake benefit at hard-hit Watsonville. Hundreds were left homeless in the agricultural community — frightened and penniless farmworkers included.

George Santana (brother of Carlos) works as office overseer with Santana Management in San Francisco. It was George who told me that Carlos would do the benefit. Probably on this month's final Sunday (11/26).

"The date has changed enormously (since planning began)," George said. "The 26th really looks like it. Call me in a few days and I'll know for sure."

The street wire from San Francisco had claimed for nearly two weeks that Carlos at Watsonville was a done deal, Bill Graham producing. One daily columnist went so far as to speculate that the benefit would happen Saturday (11/18). George's words represented the first strong commitment.

Earlier, a spokeswoman at Bill Graham Presents had said "no confirmation at all" could be given right then. Perhaps it was a slip of the tongue. Perhaps she was being nice. "A full press release on the event will be going out Monday (11/13) or shortly thereafter," she pledged.

Carlos Santana's last tour was with jazz giant Wayne Shorter. Right out of San Francisco's Mission District, Carlos is one guitarist who can play anything that an occasion requires — blues, Latin jazz, funk, rock, straight-ahead jazz, freeform improvisation.

One could feel the benefit coming. Bill Graham has a good heart — and likes to frame things dramatically too. He and Mick Jagger visited Watsonville briefly. Right before the Graham-produced Rolling Stones concert at Oakland Coliseum earlier this month.

Mick was surrounded by homeless kids and weary Red Cross workers. "The future depends upon how resilient the community is," he said. "It's not a very rich community to start with." Graham said Watsonville was hand-picked because so much media attention already had been focused on San Francisco.

It could be that Graham will put together more than one benefit concert on the same day, maybe using sites in at least two other cities. Speculation ran high that KQED-TV would cover Santana's Santa Cruz County show.

Today Bill's a wealthy man, of course. One little-known fact may help explain his social conscience. When we first met about a half million years ago, Graham was business manager for the activist San Francisco Mime Troupe. (I was lively arts editor at a daily paper; Bill requested and got a letter of recommendation to help obtain his long-term lease at what became the original Fillmore Auditorium.)

The recent Jazz Relief concert at Monterey Sheraton Ballroom raised $1,265 for Red Cross efforts in Watsonville and Santa Cruz. That total was told by Eric Tonn, Monterey Peninsula Jazz Orchestra administrator who co-produced with drummer Ed Graham.

Dozens of area musicians donated their skills, playing for more than 250 ticket-buyers. (Bands and solo pianists were named in these pages last week.)

Meanwhile, Kuumbwa Jazz Center in Santa Cruz asks special post-earthquake consideration of its membership program. A letter signed by Director Tim Jackson makes the rounds today.

He says the facility suffered no structural damage. "However, because so many of our individual donors, business sponsors and volunteers lost so much in the quake, and because we're on the edge of Pacific Garden Mall, the coming year will be a rough one for Kuumbwa, as it will be for many others...Our budget will need some shoring up."

There's a whole list of benefits and participation levels. Call the office at 1-427-2227 to obtain an info card.

THE DOBSONS play Monterey Bay Club on Thursday evening (11/16). Pianist Smith and singing spouse Gail. He joins her on vocal duets that recall Jackie Cain and Roy Kral. First set at nine o'clock.

Then: tenorman Terry Hanck's gutsy R&B crew (11/17-18), Bob Phillips and Terry Miller (11/19), Don Pendergrass plus friends (11/20), Jack and Ed Show (11/21), stone pro vocalist Buddy Conner (11/22-23).

• Kuumbwa Center offers Rebecca Parris Quartet on Monday night (11/20). It's $10 per and half-price to Kuumbwa members; eight o'clock kick; Center Stage Ticketing.

The Boston-based vocalist draws praise from critics and musicians alike. She recently recorded seven tunes by our old pal Carroll Coates. (He wrote things like Sunday in New York and London by Night. The British gentleman now lives at Albany — right beside Berkeley — and was partied out by his grown offspring not long ago on the occasion of 60th birth anniversary.)

Kuumbwa announces that tenorman Houston Person and vocalist Etta Jones will bring in their soulful teamwork early next month (12/4).

• KAZU Radio (90.3FM) has a "holiday present" for one and all — broadcasts of tapes cut during this year's Monterey Bay Blues Festival. The series starts Friday evening (11/17), that segment running from seven o'clock till midnight. Other dates: Saturday afternoon (11/18 — from three all the way to midnight); 6:30 Sunday morning (11/19) in the Gospel

Meditations slot usually occupied by Buddy and Nikki Lowe.

Bobby Reed Band will perform next week (11/25) for the holiday bash put together by Blues Fest officials. Site of the Saturday night dance concert: Oldemeyer Center. Food and door prizes too.

Advance tickets cost $12 apiece — 394-7600, 394-8304, 394-9523. Otherwise it's $14 per at the door. Proceeds will help promote the 1990 festival.

WHAT A sweet and strong way to wake up on Sunday mornings: that KAZU gospel show hosted by the married team of Buddy and Nikki. As I write these words, Aretha Franklin and James Cleveland raise their recorded voices. Traded phrases make the great thing — practical praise.

Hands clap. Call and response. The choir behind main artists swings and swings. It's a wondrous, heartfelt, grassroots program that includes church news and guest ministers. Listening, one hears jazz history — field hollers, big band section textures, exactly what inspired genius people like Duke Ellington, Miss Mary Lou Williams, Charles Mingus, The Leaders. Here's the bottomless truth that music theory classes too often ignore.

(These Lowes made a nice job easier. I'd been jotting notes toward a pair of chats about jazz for Lynn Buehler's cultural history classes at Santa Catalina School. Many words were saved when I suggested that students check out The Source by hearing Buddy and Nikki's weekly presentation.)

Another medium of praise takes shape today in Seaside. Playwright and director Etha Gray's preparing a full-scale gospel production of her original narrated drama about Martin Luther King Jr. Keeper of the Supreme Decree will be offered once early next year (1/6) at Oldemeyer Center. Well-known choir master Marvin McKnight has agreed to serve as music director. "Many voices and some excellent musicians will work under Marvin's professional hand," Ms. Gray says.

The inspirational show had productions in New Mexico when the lady was a television and radio personality (and newspaper editor) there. During the last Monterey Jazz Festival, she and local friends began discussing a peninsula version. Play committee: Janie Claytor-Woodson, Lucille Standifer, Norman and Cora Gleason, Dee Lattimore Berry, Valerie Yates.

So far the City of Seaside and Delta Sigma Theta Sorority have come aboard as co-sponsors. High-energy Lucille (on Seaside Human Relations Commission) promises "a wide spectrum of community support groups." The 28-member cast requires more than one audition — names will be noted here as soon as they're announced.

"The play considers Dr. King's whole life," Etha says. "I got to meet and talk with him. I saw something in the man that I've never seen in anyone else. He seemed divinely inspired — always on that spiritual level. At first I was a doubter, wondering if The Movement wasn't just causing problems for us. After observing how Dr. King carried himself, I became a disciple of his."

And: "White America's embarrassed by past deeds. Black history's still being left out of the books. We're doing our best to give this area an in-depth look at who this man really was."

Miguel Dominguez' works open at Fireside

An artist's reception for Dominguez will be held from 1 to 6 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 18 at the Fireside Gallery in Carmel.

Steel and silk

RECENT SCULPTURES by David Anderson, including "Lipo" (above), constructed of steel, neon and silk, will be shown at the Christopher Grimes Gallery, Dolores between Ocean and Seventh avenues in Carmel, starting with an artist's reception from 5 to 7 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 18. The works will be exhibited through Jan. 13, 1990. Anderson's talents were first revealed in his first major exhibition at the San Francisco Museum of Modern Art in 1973. He received the museum's Society for the Encouragement of Contemporary Art Award the same year and in 1975 was included in the Whitney Biennial. Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday, and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday. For more information call the gallery at 624-8454.

Dominguez preferred subject matter is the landscape of the West Coast and its flora and fauna. The show will feature his recent paintings.

The Texas-born artist moved with his family to the Salinas Valley during his formative years. Growing up in a rural area helped to foster his appreciation of open spaces, rolling hills and other aspects of the rural environment.

Primarily self-taught, he attended and took classes in art at Hartnell College.

"I have not been influenced by one artist, but a collection of artists," Dominguez says. "Being aware of what my natural instincts tell me is good work has been my learning experience."

He and his wife Alexandra have two sons, Miguelin and Alexis.

The Fireside Gallery is located on Dolores Street between Fifth and Sixth avenues. The show continues through Dec. 18. For more information call 624-1416.

SALINAS VALLEY artist Miguel Dominguez' recent paintings will be featured in an exhibit at the Fireside Gallery in Carmel. The exhibit opens Saturday, Nov. 18 with an artist's reception from 1 to 6 p.m.

Beaujolais Nouveau debuts at Spanish Bay festival

BEAUJOLAIS NOUVEAU will celebrate its traditional debut at The Inn at Spanish Bay in Pebble Beach for the Easter Seal Society of the Monterey Bay Region, Thursday, Nov. 16, from 5 to 7:30 p.m.

Beaujolais Nouveau which is always celebrated on the third Thursday of November, welcomes the first wine of the harvest from the appellations of Beaujolais and Beaujolais-Villages, France. The wine is made from only one grape variety, Gamay, and was originally named for the town of Beaujeu.

Today, the center of the wine trade is in Villefranche which is halfway between Macon and Lyon. The climate of the region is classified as continental.

Celebrity chef Wolfgang Puck of Spago's and Postrio will present a cooking demonstration at 5 p.m. in The Inn's Dunes restaurant adding to the festivities and arrival of France's first beaujolais of the season. Puck is the restauranteur credited with reviving California's culinary heritage, and is praised throughout the world for his innovative style of blending California and classical French cooking.

Austrian-born Puck began his formal training when he was 14 years old. He earned an apprenticeship at L'Oustau de Baumaniere in Provence and then cooked for the Hotel de Paris in Monaco and Maxim's in Paris.

In 1973 he came to the United States and became the chef for Ma Mason in Los Angeles. Puck opened his own restaurant, Spago, after publishing his first cookbook.

After the cooking demonstration the arrival of the wine and official declaration of the vintage will take place. The festival will be followed by the Easter Seal charity dinner in The Bay Club restaurant prepared by Puck and resident Chef Drew Previti.

All funds raised are used to provide direct services to residents of the region. The primary program is the operation of Camp Harmon, a residential, co-educational camp for disabled children and adults, located in the Santa Cruz Mountains.

Spanish Bay Beaujolais Nouveau Festival tickets are $25 per person. Charity dinner tickets are $150. For ticket information call the Pebble Beach Co. at 649-2724.

CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA CITY COUNCIL ORDINANCE NO. 89-32

AN ORDINANCE AMENDING THE CONDITIONS OF A REZONE AFFECTING PROPERTY LOCATED IN THE SERVICE COMMERCIAL (SC) LAND USE DISTRICT: BLOCK 49, LOTS 21, 22 AND 23

WHEREAS, the City approved a rezoning of property located in the R-4 Land Use District of the Service Commercial Land Use District in 1985; and

WHEREAS, the purpose of this rezone was to allow two projects that had been processed under R-4 zoning, but which would be delayed pending development of the R-4 Specific Plan, to proceed to completion; and

WHEREAS, these two projects were entirely residential in nature and therefore encouraged by the City's General Plan; and

WHEREAS, to achieve the purposes of the rezone, the City Council imposed conditions requiring that the projects proceed as planned within a given period of time; and

WHEREAS, the remedy for failure to meet the conditions as stated in the rezone is to zone the properties back to R-4 from their current SC designation; and

WHEREAS, one of the two properties failed to meet the terms of the rezone; and

WHEREAS, to leave the complying property with a designation of SC, while rezoning the non-complying property to R-4, would create an anomaly or non-contiguous parcel of SC zoned land in the midst of the R-4 District along Junipero Avenue; and

WHEREAS, this would be contrary to sound planning and zoning practice and would not be in the best interest of the neighborhood or the City; and

WHEREAS, repealing certain conditions of the rezone would retain a logical zoning boundary, ensure that the site remains committed to residential use and would prevent the creation of design nonconformities; and

WHEREAS, adoption of this ordinance would continue to allow residential development and would be consistent with the General Plan's intent to encourage additional multi-family housing; and

WHEREAS, the impacts of this rezone proposal have already been addressed in the Negative Declarations processed during the original zone adoption (1984) and in the rezone (1985) incorporated herein by reference; and

WHEREAS, both the Planning commission and the City Council have conducted public hearings on the proposed actions that were duly noticed in the local newspaper.

NOW THEREFORE, THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA DOES ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS:

Section One. The conditions listed in Sections 4 and 5 of Ordinance No. 85-34 are hereby replaced by the following text:

The design of the residential use for this property shall conform to the R-4 design standards in effect as of 3 October 1989 but shall not exceed the following limits:

- A. Maximum Building coverage: 52%
- B. Minimum Open Space: 48%
- C. Maximum Floor Area: 104%
- D. Maximum Height: 30 feet

These standards shall remain in effect for a period of eighteen (18) months from the effective date of this ordinance. If substantial construction has not commenced within this time limit, the design standards applicable to this property shall automatically revert to whatever standards are in effect for the R-4 Land Use District and shall be subject to any amendments that may be adopted for this District in the future."

Section Two. Severability. If any part of this ordinance is found to be unenforceable, such finding shall not affect the enforceability of any other part.

Section Three: Effective Date. The ordinance shall take effect 30 days after final adoption.

PASSED AND ADOPTED BY THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA this 7th day of November 1989, by the following roll call vote:

AYES: COUNCIL MEMBERS: Fischer, Laiolo, White, Wright, Grace

THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA DOES ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS:

Section One. The text of Section 12.32.165(A) shall be amended to read as follows:

A. 1. No person, firm, corporation or other entity shall build, light, maintain, cause or permit to be built, lighted or maintained, any open or outdoor fire on any public beach or fire pits designated by the city after the hour of ten p.m. No fires shall be permitted at any time on the slopes leading thereto within the city except in fire pits designated by the city. This prohibition is applicable to all that beach and slope area lying west of Scenic Road and south of Ocean Avenue to the southern city boundary. No fires shall be permitted at any time on all that beach and slope area lying west of San Antonio from Ocean Avenue to the northern city boundary, except in fire pits designated by the city.

2. The prohibition against all fires on all beach that lies at or below the high tide line and in fire pits designated by the city shall extend from ten p.m. on the day it commences until seven a.m. the following day.

AN ORDINANCE ADDING SECTION 17.24.245 TO THE MUNICIPAL CODE REGARDING EXTERIOR LIGHTING IN THE R-1 LAND USE DISTRICT

WHEREAS, a traditional value of Carmel-by-the-Sea is the lack of street lights and nighttime illumination in the residential districts; and

WHEREAS, low level illumination and evening darkness contribute to the residential character of the community; and

WHEREAS, Objective 02-5 of the General Plan states, "Preserve and enhance the qualities that contribute to the residential character of the community, including quiet neighborhoods, low levels of illumination, lack of nighttime activity, safe environment, pedestrian use of street, and maintenance of property values by mitigating the adverse impacts of high volume through-traffic.;" and

WHEREAS, recently the City has witnessed a dramatic increase in the number and brilliance of lights on private property in the residential district;

WHEREAS, some lighting is needed for safety and security reasons, but if the amount and brightness of lighting are uncontrolled, a traditional value of the community will be significantly compromised;

WHEREAS, lighting in the commercial land use districts is currently addressed through the design review process but there are no standards for the residential district;

NOW, THEREFORE THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA DOES ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS:

Sectin One: The following section is added to the R-1 Land Use District regulations in the Municipal Code:

A. All exterior lighting except as noted in Paragraph B of this Section shall be limited to 25 watts or less per fixture.

B. No exterior lighting shall be permitted within the front setback except garden lighting fixtures not exceeding eighteen inches (18") in height above grade. Garden lighting systems shall be limited to 15 watts or less per fixture which shall be at least 10 feet apart from any other garden lighting fixtures.

C. The installation of all permanent exterior lighting above eighteen inches (18") in height shall be subject to the design review process and the following standards:

1. Illumination shall be limited to lighting the areas of entrances, gateways, walkways, decks and patios.

2. The maximum height of any free-standing light fixtures shall be ten feet (10') above grade when installed behind any setback. All fixtures installed on the exterior of any dwelling or accessory building shall be mounted under the eave line or at a lower height.

D. No exterior lighting shall be permitted within or over City property

Section Two: Severability. If any part of this ordinance is found to be unenforceable, such finding shall not affect the enforceability of any other part.

Section Three: Statement of Urgency: The City Council finds that because of the uncontrolled proliferation of residential lighting, there is an immediate threat to public welfare if such lighting is not subject to design review.

Section Four: Effective Date. The ordinance is hereby declared to be an urgency ordinance as established in section 65858 of the California Government Code. This Ordinance shall take effect immediately upon approval by at least four-fifths vote of the City Council and shall remain effective for one year and 92 days unless repealed or extended as established by State Statute.

PASSED AND ADOPTED BY THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA this 7th day of November 1989, by the following roll call vote:

AYES: COUNCIL MEMBERS: Fischer, Laiolo, White, Wright, Grace

ROUNDUP

Seniors receive free health checks

Free health check-ups for older adults are offered by the SCANS (Senior Citizen and Nursing Services) program of the Monterey County Health Department. Persons over age 55 are eligible.

Appointments are required for the screenings, which are offered in Carmel at the Presbyterian Church; in Pacific Grove at the community center, 515 Junipero and at the Sally Judd-Griffin Senior Center, 700 Jewell Ave., in New Monterey at the New Monterey Neighborhood Center.

To schedule an appointment, call 899-8100.

Volunteer gardeners sought

The City of Monterey Parks Division is in need of volunteer gardeners to work in city parks. The volunteers are led by Sandra Forman and meet 9 a.m. to noon Tuesdays at the French Consulate historic adobe, Franklin Street and Camino El Estero, Monterey. Bring your energy. Tools and materials will be provided. For details, call 646-3860.

Shop the Farmers' Market

Fresh vegetables and fruit sold by the farmers who grew them are the feature of the Farmers' Market. The market is in operation 2:30 to 6 p.m. Thursdays at Monterey Peninsula College and 8 a.m. to noon Sundays at Hartnell College in Salinas.

A variety of local produce is available at the market, including fresh vegetables, fruit, nuts, honey, mushrooms, sprouts, flowers, nursery stock, dried fruit and eggs.

For further information, call 423-7308.

Bring own water to Molera Park

Drinking or potable water is no longer available in the Andrew Molera State Park, located on the Big Sur Coast.

In the past, potable water was provided by "water buffaloes." The old military metal water tanks on wheels no longer meet state health standards for drinking water and have been removed from the park.

Campers and day users should plan on bringing their own drinking water. Drinking water is available at Pfeiffer Big Sur State Park and Julia Pfeiffer Burns State Park.

For further information, contact the Big Sur District Office at 667-2315.

Park for free in Monterey

The City of Monterey has removed the one-hour parking meters from the first floor of the West Custom House Garage located at Tyler and Del Monte streets downtown. The first floor has been converted to a free one-hour maximum time limit, with the exception of two 24-minute and one handicapped space.

Use toll-free line for park reservations

There is a toll-free telephone number for making reservations at California State Parks through the MISTIX reservation system — 1-800-444-7275.

Reservations from out-of-state callers will still be made through the toll number of 1-619-452-1950.

The toll-free number is not only for state park camping reservations, but also for Hearst Castle tours.

Masters' Tree display opens

The annual Masters' Tree display will be shown on the Monterey Fairgrounds in conjunction with the annual Festival of Trees. The display consists of more than 65 miniature works of art by local artists.

For details, call 372-5477.

Community band schedules rehearsals

Interested musicians are invited to join the Monterey Community Band, which rehearses 7:15 to 9:30 p.m. Mondays in the Monterey High School band room.

Dick Robins conducts the band, which is sponsored by the City of Monterey Recreation and Community Services Department.

Auditions are not necessary; however, those interested must be able to read music and provide their own instrument. The band plays a variety of music, from jazz to classical. There are no registration fees involved.

For details, call 646-3866.

Cooper-Molera visitor center opens

The Monterey State Historic Park, Cooper-Molera Visitor Center, located on the corner of Polk and Munras in Monterey, is now open daily except Wednesdays from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The Visitor Center contains displays on the history of Monterey and the Cooper family members who had an impact on early California history.

Art council accepts grant applications

The California Arts Council was formed in 1976 to promote artistic awareness and participation in California.

Grantees may apply in one of the following disciplines: dance, interdisciplinary, literature, media, multi-disciplinary arts, music, theater, visual arts and arts service and presenting organizations.

Deadline for the 1990-91 Organizational Support Program is Feb. 1, 1990. For an application or information on this or other arts council programs contact the California Arts Council, 1901 Broadway, Suite A, Sacramento, CA 95818; (415) 445-1530.

Open Studio Tour applications

Applications are now available for the Second Annual Artists Equity Open Studio Tour. Deadline is Nov. 30.

Participants need not be a "professional" artist to participate.

For application, send name and address to Box HG, Pacific Grove, 93950, or call 625-0140. Acceptance will be on a first-come, first-served basis.

View 'Impressions, Expressions'

A student competitive exhibition, "Impressions and Expressions," can be viewed in the Monterey Peninsula College Art Gallery.

Works in various media by MPC art students have been selected by Preston Metcalf, assistant curator of the San Jose Museum of Art.

The show continues through Nov. 21. The gallery is open 8 a.m. to noon and 1 to 3 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Elk's hoop shoot free throw contest

The Carmel-by-the-Sea Recreation Department and Carmel Youth Center, in conjunction with the Monterey Elks Lodge, are sponsoring the 1989 Hoop Shoot Free Throw Contest. The Competition is open to boys and girls 9 through 13 years old who reside in the Carmel area. Each participant will shoot a total of 25 free throws. The first place winner in each division will be eligible to compete in the peninsula finals.

Hoop shoot is scheduled for Saturday, Nov. 18 beginning at 11:30 a.m. at the Carmel Middle School. Registration will be taken at the door and there is no fee to participate. Call the Recreation Department at 626-1255 for further information.
